CHICAGO TO HAVE NEXT 3 GAMES

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 22.—Pat Moran's proverbial luck clung to him today. Cincinnati will open the fight for the world baseball championship at home. A toss of a coin decided the issue here today.

The opening two games will be played here. The teams then will jump to Chicago for three games.

The next two will be played in Cincinnati if required, the eighth in Chicago and the ninth will be decided by a toss of the coin.

LONDON — Russian Mohammedans have been engaged in a five-day fight with the Russian Bolsheviks, said an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Pekin today. The Chinese Mohammedans will likely join the Russian Mohammedans.

LONDON—Germany has sent a note to the peace conference, asking for a decision as to the future of the Memel district, formerly a part of the German province of East Prussia, which was detached by the peace treaty, according to a news agency dispatch from Berlin.

SUMMONS IN RENT INQUIRY

Officials of the Greater Boston Mortgage Company at No. 10 Tremont street were served with summonses today, commanding their presence before the State Commission on the Necessaries of Life tomorrow to answer to charges of rent profiteering.

The officials of the company had previously ignored a "request" of the commission that they appear in person.

The hearing will be held at the State House. The charges were preferred against the company by a number of their 200 tenants in the greater city.

Members of the state commission will turn the matter over to criminal authorities if it develops that the accusations of the tenants are justified.

30 Vessels Bring in Season's Record Catch of Fish

Thirty vessels carrying the largest catch of fish of the season and one of the largest of all time, docked at this port today.

Despite this fact prices ruled higher than last week, when the skippers were forced to pocket losses.

Today's catch consisted of two million pounds of groundfish and one-half million pounds of mackerel and swordfish. The steam trawler Foam was highline, with 258,000 pounds of groundfish, and the trawler Ocean second with 183,760 pounds. The minimum prices agreed on at the settlement of the fishermen's strike were maintained, with haddock, small cod and pollock the cheapest at four and a half cents.

VETERANS WOULD BE POLICE

A number of former service men, including veterans of the Yankee Division, passed the preliminary physical tests for appointment to the Boston police force today.

Considerable surprise was created by the fact that a large majority of the applicants were rejected, mainly because they were under weight or too short.

After passing the civil service non-competitive examination, with a mark of 65 per cent. the names of the men will be placed on a provisional list. On Friday there will be an examination for civilians.

A large number of veterans appeared, but the examining board worked slowly, so that only about half of the men had been sent to the Civil Service Commission at the State House by noon.

The men were called for under Section 4, Chapter 158 of the Revised Laws of 1918, which authorizes the police commissioner to appoint veter-

Steel Strike in Brief

HOMESTEAD, PA. — All steel plants operating with practically complete forces. Few blast furnaces closed.

DONORA, PA.—All plants closed approximately 3,500 men are idle.

WHEELING, W. VA.—Practically all plants closed down, with from 10,000 to 12,000 men striking.

DUQUESNE, PA.—All plants operating with practically complete forces.

SHARON, PA.—All plants operating except one; some badly crippled.

FARRELL, PA.—All plants operating, some crippled by strikers.

TARENTUM, PA.—All plants operating, 25 per cent. of men quit.

NEWCASTLE, PA. — All plants operating, estimated 20 per cent of men out.

CHICAGO—Eighty per cent. of 100,000 workers quit.

NEW KENSINGTON, PA.—Two plants closed down, 1,100 men out.

VANDERGRIFT, PA.—Estimated 30 per cent. of men out, plants operating.

MONESSON, PA.—Officials closed plant, 6,000 men out.

BETHLEHEM, PA.—Employes postpone strike, sending ultimatum demanding conference on Thursday.

McKEESPORT, PA.—All plants but one operating; operating plants crippled; 3,000 out.

CHESTER, VA.—Mill owners report operating 100 per cent.

STEUBENVILLE, O.—One plant closed.

BELLAIRE, O.—Closed down.

WEIRTON, W. V.—Plants operating with estimated 90 per cent. of forces.

TAKE BELL-ANS BEFORE MEALS and no fear of food distress makes you feel fine.—Advt.

CLEVELAND—Union leaders estimated today that 20,000 steel workers are on strike in the Cleveland district. Switchmen on the Newburgh & South Shore Railroad joined the strikers. This will prevent materials moving into the mills. All departments of the American Steel & Wire Company, operating sixteen mills, were closed down.

JOHNSTOWN, PA.—One plant closed, another badly crippled; estimated 17,000 men on strike.

ELWOOD CITY, PA.—All plants operating, some slightly crippled.

LEBANON, PA.—Plants operating with practically full forces.

STEELTON, PA.—All plants operating, men requesting conference with officials on Thursday.

PITTSBURGH—All plants operating with crippled forces.

BEAVER, PA.—All plants operating in Beaver Valley, some crippled.

269,000 SAID TO BE OUT

Senate Is Asked to Probe Steel Strike and Find Out Its Cause

Washington, Sept. 22.—A Senate investigation of the steel strike is provided for in a resolution introduced in the Senate this afternoon by Senator Curtis of Kansas, for Senator Stanton of Iowa. The resolution provides that the Education and Labor Committee shall investigate "and report the causes and reasons" for the strike.

By International News Service.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 22.—William Z. Foster, secretary of the steel strikers' national committee, gave out figures at strike headquarters here today asserting that 269,000 steel workers throughout the country went on strike today. Many big steel mills are closed.

Foster's figures were as follows: Chicago 40,000, Cleveland 20,000, Youngstown, O., including Sharon and Farrell, Pa., district 50,000; Buffalo, 12,000; Johnstown, Pa., 15,000; Homestead, 9,000; Braddock, Pa., 6,000; Rankin, Pa., 3,000; Clairton, Pa., 6,000; Monessen and Donora, Pa., 12,000; Wheeling, W. Va., 15,000; Steubenville, O., 6,000; Pueblo, Col., 6,000; Coatesville, Pa., 4,000; McKeesport, Pa., and Duquesne, Pa., 12,000; Pittsburgh, 15,000; Vandergrift, 4,000; Leechburg, 2,500; Brackenridge, 5,000.

PLANT IS FIRED AT.

The first flurry of excitement in the strike came today, when two unidentified men fired eight shots into the plant of the Clairton Steel Company at North Clairton. No one was injured.

The shots were fired from a hill

RAILROAD SHOPMEN'S STRIKE SETTLED

Washington, Sept. 22.—The strike of railroad shopmen, which has been hanging in the balance for several weeks, has been practically settled, it was learned this afternoon. An agreement has been signed by the Railroad Administration and the shopmen's union involved, that the question of the wage demands of the men be disposed of as outlined in the President's letter to Director-General Hines declaring that there should be no more increases in wages except to clear up existing inequalities.

TWO ADMIT THEY HELPED STEAL AUTOS

John J. Buckley of Somerville and Joseph Woodman of Boston, both well-known in boxing circles, today pleaded guilty to two indictments which charged conspiracy to steal automobiles and the receiving of stolen cars.

Their plea was entered before Judge O'Connell in Superior Criminal Court, Cambridge. The conspiracy was unearthed at Billerica some days ago by the police.

The confessions of the defendants followed a current rumor that several leaders of the alleged gang had turned State's evidence. As a result of evidence secured, several of the stolen cars have been recovered.

Eight or ten men besides Buckley and Woodman were scheduled to be tried today.

With the approval of the Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, the Mayor of the City of Boston, and the Police Commissioner of the City of Boston, the following is addressed to the Citizens of Massachusetts:

The present crisis has brought forcibly to the public attention the enduring loyalty of a portion of the police force of Boston and the readiness of the military forces of the Commonwealth to make great sacrifices to maintain the authority of their government. It is desirable that these patriotic services should be recognized by all the people. The time has come to demonstrate that the people support their government and are not unmindful of these public servants. In order that there may be a fund for these objects it is proposed to raise a substantial sum of money and have agreed, for themselves and their successors in trust, to act as trustees of such fund, and in their discretion to disburse it for the benefit of—

1. The members of the police force of Boston who have remained loyal during the present crisis and future appointees, and the dependents of both in every case with the approbation of the Commissioner.

2. The military and naval force of the Commonwealth and their dependents.

3. Any organization ministering to the welfare of, or any members or their dependents in, any force or organization providing for the public security of this Commonwealth; and any balance of said fund to be distributed in the absolute discretion of the trustees.

GREAT STEEL STRIKE GOES INTO EFFECT; THOUSANDS ARE IDLE

BIG MILLS CRIPPLED BY MOVE

Both Sides Are Confident of Ultimate Success as Walk-out Begins

overlooking the plant. State troops made a dash after the men, but they escaped through the woods.

Officials attributed the shooting to sympathizers of the men who were arrested yesterday afternoon while attempting to hold a union meeting in a public square. Mounted troops broke up the meeting and arrested nineteen of the leaders.

As the day progressed crowds congregated in the streets at North Clairton, Braddock and Rankin State constables and city police dispersed them as fast as they formed, and there was little trouble.

At North Clairton a crowd congregated about one of the mill entrances and two men refused to move when ordered to do so. They were arrested and charged with disorderly conduct. They gave their names as Samuel March and Lin Tanenbunan.

Police and constables have searched many men throughout the mill districts for weapons. It was said that fifteen revolvers had been secured.

SOME PLANTS SHUT DOWN.

From the Rockies to the Alleghenies the big mills which form the nation's steel industry continued operation with crippled forces, varying according to the locality and the degree of organization which the American Federation of Labor has succeeded in effecting. A few plants were closed down completely. Others continued operating fully, feeling little or no effect of the walkout order. Still others started operations with partial forces.

So vast was the area covered and gigantic the scope of the strike that definite figures on its success or failure were practically impossible to obtain. In the Pittsburgh district, which includes all territory from Johnstown, Pa., to Youngstown, O., and forms the cockpit for the great labor struggle, early reports indicate that only a fraction of the employes as a whole had refused to go to work. Both sides expressed optimism concerning the situation and declared their belief that the ultimate showdown will be favorable to them.

BOTH SIDES CONFIDENT.

The officials of the United States Steel Corporation asserted that practically every plant operated by the corporation in this district was in operation today and unless unforeseen developments occur would continue operation. A few of the blast furnaces, in which the labor is mostly foreign, were closed down, but as a whole it was stated the strike was having no effect.

William Z. Foster, secretary and treasurer of the national committee, who is directing labor's end of the fray from here, said: "Early reports show that many of the plants have closed down completely. In others, the employers are making a pretence of keeping open, with steam up and wheels moving. But we know that few men are working. The shutdown is better than we anticipated, considering all the difficulties we have had to contend with. We probably will not know until tomorrow morning just how complete the strike is. Everything is at present more than satisfactory."

From a steel official who requested that his name be withheld came this statement:

"We are in far better shape today than we really expected to be. Practically all the plants are operating. In some cases only certain departments are running, and a number of blast furnaces are closed. This is mostly because foreign labor is employed at the furnaces, and the foreigners constitute the majority of the organized men.

It was a source of satisfaction to both sides that the big strike was ushered in with comparative quiet.

PLANTS WELL GUARDED.

Literally thousands of deputy police, deputy sheriffs and State constables, many of them mounted and all of them armed, are scattered about the plants, keeping the pedestrians on the move and preventing anything that has the appearance of a congestion about the plants or adjacent streets. They are under strict orders and have wide authority to quell anything which starts.

The situation as it affects the independent steel companies in the Pittsburgh district is practically the same as that of the United States Steel Corporation, against which the strike is mainly directed. A few of the independent plants have closed down, preferring to take this method of preventing any trouble. But in the main the independent concerns, like the corporation, have opened up shop and continue with their work.

Officials of the steel companies stated that the strikers were practically all foreigners. The American skilled workmen—some of whose wages run as high as $10 to $12 a day—did not heed the strike call and trudged into the factories today when the whistles blew.

Donora reported the big plant of the American Steel & Wire Company, employing more than 3,500 men, shut down completely. Strikers surrounded the gates of the company in large numbers, and, as the situation became threatening, the officials simply locked the gates and barred all entrance.

The great mills of Homestead, Duquesne, Braddock and the Southside of Pittsburgh, forming the backbone of the Monongahela district, were quiet and operating with but little loss of labor, according to reports.

The Allegheny Valley was somewhat more affected. The Allegheny and West Penn Steel Company plants at Breckenridge, largest of the valley plants, though operating, were badly crippled. At Newcastle, where ten thousand men were employed, it was reported that approximately 20 per cent. were out, and at Vandergrift 30 per cent heeded the strike call.

The great plants of the United States Steel Corporation at Sharon and Farrell were operating in all departments.

STRIKERS HOLD PARADES.

Jones & Laughlin, probably the biggest independent operators in the district, reported that their mills were operating 100 per cent. Parades were held in a number of the factory towns this forenoon, mostly by striking workmen.

At Homestead the American workmen lined up and paraded into the plant to work.

Secretary Foster announced today that an extraordinary meeting of the American Federation of Labor's national committee for organizing iron and steel workers will meet here Wednesday. John Fitzpatrick, who is chairman of the committee, is now in Chicago.

Employers Won Two Big Steel Trade Strikes

Here are details of the two great strikes in the history of the steel trade, both of which resulted in victory for the employers, and one, the famous Homestead strike, in considerable loss of life:

HOMESTEAD.

Date—1892.

Cause—Cut in wages.

Duration—Five months.

Casualties in battle of July 6—Twenty killed, fifteen died of wounds, 150 injured; due to attempt to put a large number of detectives into Homestead.

Estimated loss to strikers in wages—$2,000,000.

Estimated loss to company —$4,000,000.

Result—Victory for Carnegie Steel Company.

TIN PLATE STRIKE.

Date—1901.

Cause—Refusal to recognize union in all plants; privilege of organizing everywhere.

Duration—Sixty days.

Estimated loss to strikers in wages—$26,730,000.

Estimated loss to company —$9,000,000.

Result—Victory for company; loss of members and of control of plants of Amalgamated Association.

H. C. Frick, who figured in both these strikes, is now a member of the finance committee of the steel corporation.

Eighty Per Cent. of Workers at Buffalo Report and Then Quit

By International News Service.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 22—Eighty per cent. of the steel workers employed at the Lackawanna Steel Company, the Donner Steel plant and the Rogers Brown iron works numbering approximately 12,000, left their jobs today. There was no sign of trouble. The men reported for work and later left. Practically all of them returned to their homes. There was no loitering on the streets.

The union heads apealed to the workers to avoid any violence. Mayor Toomey of Lackawanna, where the big plants are located, was prepared for any emergency.

A mass meeting of the strikers will be held this evening.

Eighty Per Cent. of Workers in Chicago District Go on Strike

By International News Service.

Chicago, Sept. 22.—Without the slightest sign of disorder, 80 per cent. of the upwards of 100,000 steel workers in the Chicago district, including Chicago proper, South Chicago, Indiana Harbor, Gary and numerous small steel towns in the Calumet region, went on strike today. According to union leaders, the strike has "paralyzed the steel industry in this section." They were quick, however, to refuse to admit the industry is paralyzed and expressed the hope that before nightfall many of the plants would be operating "probably not full blast, but operating in a way that will save the mills."

Union leaders and strike committees declare that 100 per cent. of the men employed in the industry in this, the second largest steel section in the country, are out.

"This is not a fight for more money," declared one striker. "It is for principle and we will win without any disturbance."

Guards are on duty at practically all of the plants. Union pickets also are on duty at the plants, but both guards and pickets are "working in complete harmony," according to reports.

Philadelphia Quiet, but Union Steel Men Quit at Coatesville

Philadelphia, Sept. 22.—The strike of steel workers had little effect in Philadelphia today, but at Coatesville about one thousand joined the walkout. Normal conditions prevailed at the Midvale Steel and Ordnance Company, the Pencoyd Iron Works and the Baldwin Locomotive plants at the opening hour. Workmen entered all of these establishments at the regular hour. The usual number of guards were on duty and there was no evidence of unemployed groups gathered in the vicinity of the plants.

Employes on duty declared that a general walkout had not been noticeable thus far. Employers stated that the proportion of organized steel workers in the Philadelphia plants is small and that no cessation of work here is anticipated.

Employes of the Midvale Company and the Lukens Steel Company at Coatesville have followed orders to walk out.

"Complete Tie-up of Steel Industry," States Telegram to Gompers

By International News Service.

Washington, Sept. 22.—Indications are that "There is a complete tie-up" of the steel industry, according to a telegram received this afternoon by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor from William Z. Foster, secretary and treasurer of the Steel Workers National Committee.

At the same time W. H. Rubin of New York, counsel for the workers' committee, following a conference with Gompers, stated that he planned to bring damage and impeachment proceedings against the officials of all towns where meetings of the

EXAMINING APPLICANTS FOR POLICE JOBS

There was a rush of candidates to the Ford Building, where would-be police officers of Boston's new force were given a preliminary examination. Photograph shows candidates being weighed and measured. Many were rejected.

100 Millions of "Riot" Insurance In Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, Sept. 22 — More than $1,000,000,000 in "riot and commotion" insurance policies has been written during the past ten days for residents of this city in anticipation of the steel strike.

Reports from other districts affected by the strike state that similar policies have been taken out by many merchants and other citizens who are willing to pay large premiums to be safeguarded against loss of property or personal injury, so far as insurance can safeguard them against the latter. Ordinary life and business insurance does not cover "riot and commotion."

steel workers had been either prohibited or broken up. The chief purpose of these proceedings, he admitted, was to force officials of the steel companies to take the witness stand.

He also intimated that he would bring pressure upon Congress to order an investigation of the steel companies' activities and upon Attorney-General A. Mitchell Palmer to speed up the pending suit for the dissolution of the United States Steel Corporation.

Benwood and Wheeling District Is Hard Hit, With General Closing

By International News Service.

Wheeling, W. Va., Sept. 22.—The steel strike hit the Benwood and Wheeling district hard today. Practically all the mills are closed in the districts and 12,000 men are idle.

Approximately three thousand are out at the Benwood plant of the National Tube Co., three thousand out at the Benwood, Wheeling and Martins Ferry plants of the Wheeling Steel and Iron Company, 800 at the Carnegie plant at Bellaire, and 200 at the LaBelle iron works here.

The other six mills in this district are already closed, having been on strike for a week.

and provided that a suitable eligible list is lacking.

About one hundred and fifty men, all of whom had seen service, were on hand at 9 o'clock at Kingsley Hall, Ford Building, and were examined by the committee consisting of ex-Superintendent William H. Pierce, Captain Perley G. Skillings, Captain Charles J. Reardon and Lieutenant W. J. Sheehan.

The candidates, who were all husky and well developed, included Francis L. Green of No. 17 Sturbridge street, Dorchester, formerly an ensign in the merchant marine, and Albert F. Swett, a third cruise gunners' mate in the navy.

The men, after being weighed and measured, were registered, and then directed to the State House for the Civil Service non-competitive examination.

The Ford Building was heavily guarded by soldiers, while outside the door Captain Fitzgerald and Sergeant Flaherty of Station 3 were stationed to direct the applicants.

According to the advertisements of the Police Commissioner in the newspapers, all applicants must have served in the army, navy or marine corps in time of war and been honorably discharged or released therefrom.

The examining committee will be on duty at Kingsley Hall throughout the week, and it is expected that the required number of men will be secured without difficulty.

Charles H. Baldwin of Brattle street, Cambridge, a volunteer police officer, was held in $450 by Judge Bosson in the Chelsea Court today on charges of operating an automobile without a registration card and of carrying a loaded revolver. His case was continued until September 27.

Germantown Citizens' Association Favors Compromise on Strike

The following resolutions for reinstatement of the striking policemen were adopted by the Germantown Citizens' Association at a meeting in Gallivan Hall:

"Whereas, owing to the unnecessarily rigid and unreasonably unyielding attitude of the Police Commissioner, and to the ill-considered action of the policemen in striking, a situation has been created which is rapidly becoming intolerable, especially in the Germantown sections, where guardsmen and volunteer police have been guilty of flagrant misconduct; and,

"Whereas, the taxpayers of Boston are being burdened with a financial load which threatens to become unbearable; therefore, be it

"Resolved, that it is the sense of the Germantown Citizens' Association that for the honor, fair name and better protection of our city and in the interest of its taxpayers, a compromise be effected by the parties concerned by which the striking policemen shall be immediately restored to their former positions.

"Resolved, that we declare our conviction of the justice of the policemen retaining their right of collective bargaining.

"Resolved, that copies of these resolutions be given to the press, His Excellency the Governor, His Honor the Mayor, the Police Commissioner, and the president of the Policemen's Union.

"Arthur B. Morris, Richard J. Robinson, Richard J. Cronin, J. C. Howard, James H. Chisel, Hugh McCarron, Rudolph Webber, Fritz Eberth, Committee."

Ministers Endorse Governor's Course in Police Crisis

Congregational ministers at their opening meeting in Pilgrim Hall unanimously passed a resolution commending the action of Governor Coolidge upon the police strike. Rev. W. M. McNair, pastor of the Prospect Street Congregational Church, Cambridge, offered this resolution:

"A critical and dangerous situation has arisen in the city of Boston, owing to the abandonment of their posts of duty by the police force of this city, and

"Whereas, Governor Coolidge has valiantly met this situation with decision and public-spirited action;

"Therefore be it resolved, That we, Congregational ministers of Greater Boston, at our first meeting this season, hereby commend Governor Coolidge for his worthy action."

Curtis Guilty of a Criminal Blunder, Is Watterson's Charge

Police Commissioner Curtis was guilty of a criminal blunder in failing to be prepared for the walkout of the patrolmen, according to a letter to the American, written by Bennett Watterson of No. 564 Massachusetts avenue. Mr. Watterson admitted that the policemen themselves blundered, but maintained that they should be forgiven inasmuch as they had admitted their fault.

He said that Mr. Curtis was forewarned and should have been forearmed, and asked that some of the blame be shifted from the police to the shoulders of the commissioner.

The striking officers are bitter at their lot. They are also bitter at Commissioner Curtis for his actions since the strike began. They contend that his calling for State troops was unnecessary, as they say he had enough officers still in service to police the streets.

They maintain that the disorder of the first night of the walkout cannot be laid at their door, and charge it to lack of foresight of the authorities.

Curtis Should Take Back Patrolmen, Is Englishman's Opinion

Rev. Dugal MacFayden, pastor of the Highgate Congregational Church in London, Eng., declared today in Boston that from his observation of British police strikes, he was convinced that Commissioner Curtis should reinstate most of the striking patrolmen here.

In a discussion of current events ranging from police strikes to international politics, Mr. MacFayden also advocated making the United States mandatory for Ireland, after the League of Nations is ratified.

The London minister said: "I do not know exactly what percentage of the striking police of London and Liverpool were taken back, but it was a wise move. In trying to adjust strikes and get back to normal, it is wise to make compromises, not to be too strongly entrenched in a principle which needs expansion.

"Without knowing much of the strike here, I do believe that it is rare indeed that one side is all right, the other side all wrong. There is no reason why efficient men on the police force, even in the face of a mistake, should be given no consideration."

Turning to the Irish question, he said that he believed Britain would assent to almost any solution of the problem, short of absolute independence, which he termed "establishing an allen country next door."

Maternity Bill Meetings

Public meetings at which the maternity bill will be discussed will be held tonight in Central Square, Cambridge, Malden Square and Everett Square. Senator Edward G. Morris and Edna Lawrence Spencer will make addresses.

DEPENDENTS OF POLICE ARE SUFFERING

There is "another side to the shield" in the Boston police strike, one quite as interesting as the clash of labor leaders, the arguments of learned counsel, the looting and the bringing in of troops.

That other side is dark with the suffering of hundreds of women and children, the innocent dependents of the striking patrolmen. And those of humane instinct are recognizing it, and the need of its remedy.

Many of the "strikers" are jobless, and most of them have large families. In the wake of this condition is following sacrifice, and in many cases actual want.

Individual stories, which are heartrending, are coming to light as the days close, probably the saddest of men who have no other trade than policeman, and must start all over again.

The patrolmen are not finding it easy to get other jobs. Many have specialized in their thankless task of guardians of order until their efforts to "learn new tricks" are pitiful.

TEN IN THIS FAMILY.

In the market district Saturday night one of the striking officers met his former associates from an outlying station, and told his own story. This man has a wife and eight children, the oldest twelve years old. He has served in the department fifteen years, and has been so busy bringing up a family that he has never been able to save for the rainy day which has come upon him within a vengeance.

Practically penniless when the strike came on, landlords and others saw to it that his life did not become monotonous. His tenement was sold over his head, he was forced to store his furniture, and was unable to rent a flat. Literally forced to "buy" a house, he borrowed the money for a small deposit on a not particularly desirable little residence far from the city. To keep a roof over the heads of his wife and children, he spent almost his last dollar he could borrow, and there was food enough in the house to last for forty-eight hours.

ABLE TO SAVE LITTLE.

Another officer on his small wages had started a family of five toward a better education than he had known, and two of them are studying for the priesthood. Without funds, and with bills pressing in, he fears that he will be obliged to call them out of college, and give up the dream of his lifetime.

A third, attached to a downtown station, is taking two sons out of school to help him beat the wolf from the door.

Stories of suffering in large families are not the only ones that have been able to save little.

Cases of suffering become more poignant where illness exists, and this condition does exist in the households of many ex-policemen.

In one such instance, the man has a wife, seven children and a crippled relative dependent on him. Some time before the strike he sought outside work to earn a little extra money. His was complained of by a jealous neighbor and given 176 hours' extra duty, which was just finished when the labor trouble developed. He struck.

The striking officers are bitter at their lot. They are also bitter at Commissioner Curtis for his actions since the strike began. They contend that his calling for State troops was unnecessary, as they say he had enough officers still in service to police the streets.

They maintain that the disorder of the first night of the walkout cannot be laid at their door, and charge it to lack of foresight of the authorities.

YANKEE DIVISION MEN PROTEST CLOSING OF THE ELKS' HOSPITAL

WOUNDED RESENT ACTION

Health Service Major Declares $300,000 Institution Is "White Elephant"

Abandoned by the government and vacant since it has been turned over to the United States Public Health Service, Major E. Case Sprague, who is in command, today characterized the Elks Memorial Hospital on Parker Hill, Roxbury, as a "white elephant and an empty shell."

Erected at a total cost of more than $300,000 by popular subscription among the Elks for the reconstruction of wounded soldiers and sailors, it was filled to capacity from its dedication in November, 1918, to the first of last June.

Orders issued at that time to move the 400 men under treatment to hospitals in other parts of the country raised storms of protest, not alone from the men themselves but from all over New England.

Following the arrival of the order to close the hospital 100 officers vigorously protested the order. Despite army rules to the contrary, men and officers signed a petition which they forwarded to Secretary Baker. Telegrams emphatically denouncing their treatment were sent to every New England Congressman.

ATTACKS ECONOMY.

The general feeling of the wounded men of the Yankee Division and other fighting units in wheel chairs, on crutches and others with their arms and legs in slings and bandages, was crystallized by one of the majors in command when he declared:

"The government is attempting to save money at the expense of the wounded men who received their wounds while fighting for America's cause in France. But while we were fighting they had no thought of saving at the spigot and wasting at the bung.

"They say this hospital was constructed for its psychological effect and that this has been accomplished. The wounded men on the other side were told that when they arrived in the States they would be sent to the hospital nearest their homes so that they could be seen by relatives and friends for the psychological effect, and now that the men have been visited all the good has been done.

"We are all liable to court-martial for our actions here as are the nurses, but we officers, as patients, are ready to give service and information."

The following telegram of protest sent to Washington read:

"Four hundred wounded patients in meeting tonight protest, and ask you to use your influence in maintaining Base Hospital No. 10. Matters of expense should not be considered. These wounded men feel that the United States owes this to them. This is the only base hospital in New England. The men feel that they have been forgotten and ask this small favor of you. Dangerous to remove many of the cases."

That night Congressman Fitzgerald and Governor Beeckman of Rhode Island conferred with Secretary Baker in Washington by telephone. However, the men were moved and the hospital closed.

ENTITLED TO U. S. AID.

"Orders came from Washington for the United States Public Health Service to take over Base Hospital No. 10 the first of last July," said Major Sprague. "Base Hospital consists of the Brigham Mansion and the new Elks building, the Elks building being a large ward annex to the Brigham building and drawing its food supplies by means of a tunnel."

"In spite of the fact that many of the most prominent men in New England attempted to hold it for its original purpose, we were ordered to accept a lease of the hospital, which was the first of July, 1920.

"Although the place is built on a magnificent scale, I have no use for it at present, for I have but 150 patients, who are in the Brigham building. Also 40 per cent. of these are service men, who are entitled to medical attention by the provision of the War Risk Insurance."

THREE CHARGED WITH ROBBING NEWSBOY

Three East Boston boys, charged with robbing Israel Ostrofsky, a newsboy, of $3, and with theft of collar buttons from a Chelsea five-and-ten-cent store, were held for continued hearings on Thursday by Judge Johnson today in the Juvenile Court, Chelsea. The boys are Eugene Nazzaro, sixteen, of East Eagle street, held in $1,500; Clarence McNeil, fifteen, of Lexington street, held in $1,500, and Paul Quirk, twelve, of East Eagle street, in $500.

Pending the continued hearing McNeil and quirk were sent back to the Lyman School, from which they have been on parole.

SERVICE CROSS FOR INFANTRY OFFICER

Major F. B. Shaw, chief of the army recruiting station at 2 Tremont Row, has received from the War Department, a distinguished service cross for presentation to Alexander L. McCormack, formerly second lieutenant with the 16th Infantry of the 1st Division. Major Shaw has communicated with Mr. McCormack at 70 Clarkson street, Dorchester, and expects to have the ceremony of presentation within a few days. Two more lost discharges were picked up on the Common on Sunday and turned in to the recruiting office for advertising. The names of the discharged are those of Edward B. Hamill and Harry W. Loud.

WELLESLEY COLLEGE REOPENS WITH MANY OF ITS FACULTY BACK FROM WAR DUTIES

What Wellesley lacks in numbers this year it is surely going to make up in other qualities. Proof of this is shown above in the pleasing personalities of Dorothy Grow of Minneapolis and Molly Adams of West Newton.

More evidence that Wellesley not only is beautiful as a whole, but claims the same distinction through those who go to make up its membership.

PREDICT RAISE OF PAY FOR TEACHERS

General Increase in Salaries Likely Unless the Mayor Makes Objection

A general increase in salaries for Boston school teachers unless Mayor Peters offers objection was predicted today following the launching of a concerted drive for higher wages to be given favorable consideration at the meeting of the School Committee tonight.

The question of increased pay for school teachers will be taken up tonight at a special conference between the School Committee and the Board of Superintendents. To work out the new salary schedules for twenty-seven or twenty-eight different classes of teachers will require considerable time, but members of the school committee, who are said to be unanimously in favor of a substantial increase, believe that this matter can be expedited.

All the members of the school committee fear is that they will encounter opposition from Mayor Peters.

"I cannot see how the city of Boston can keep its teaching force together unless the salaries of teachers are raised," one of the members of the committee said today. "If we have opposition from the Mayor it would require an impossible length of time to put a bill through the Legislature authorizing increase. In our efforts to maintain the present teaching system the Mayor fought us five months and sent his corporation counsel and assistants to the Legislature to oppose us."

"If it is necessary to go through such another fight as the opposition of the Mayor brought about," this member of the School Committee said, "to get what is already needed would require a board composed not of the five members who serve gratuitously, but a much larger board, some of whose members would have to be paid. A much larger board would be necessary in order to get the children their rights."

"What the Mayor's object in carrying on a fight in the Legislature through the Corporation Counsel and his assistants against even maintaining our present teaching system is difficult to understand."

CHELSEA BOY, THIRTEEN, REGISTERED AT HARVARD

Schankman appeared so youthful that when he attempted to register he was mistaken for a messenger boy. In the sophomore class this year are John Nicholas Brown of Providence and Dennel Withington of the famous Withington family. There also are several former Harvard athletes, including Eddie Casey, in the out-of-course classes.

WILSON FEELS TREATY FIGHT IS WON.

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

On Board President's Train En Route to Reno, Nev., Sept. 22.—With his train definitely turned northeastward, President Wilson today made a start for home, personally to assume command of the final days of battle for the ratification of the treaty of Versailles.

Fresh from what was in his opinion and that of the members of his official staff a complete triumph on the Pacific coast, the President was extremely confident that he had his fight won. He believes absolutely that the votes are available for complete ratification and he remains extremely confident that the vote to reject any and all reservations and textual amendments that go to the heart of the treaty and which would require resubmission of the treaty to the signatory powers for approval will be an overwhelming one.

The biggest test will be on the Johnson amendment, to demand for the United States the same number of votes that are given to Great Britain, and on the Norris amendment that would substitute the name of China for Japan, wherever the latter nation is mentioned as a beneficiary in the phantom provisions of the treaty.

A count in the Senate made by Senators who worked independently of the party poll, is stated to have shown that both amendments would receive from three to ten votes less than a majority. Names naturally are withheld but it is positively claimed by members of the President's official family that the opposition cannot win.

While the President was continuing his trip eastward, speaking on the League of Nations, he was also watching with the most earnest attention the developments in the very threatening industrial situation. Reports that as a result of the developments of the last 48 hours he would cut short his trip and hasten to Washington, were flatly denied. It was said that the President could do no more in Washington than he could here.

TRESPASSERS PLEAD GUILTY IN COURT

Charged with trespassing, seventeen men arrested yesterday in a raid on Mansfield place, Charlestown, pleaded guilty in the Charlestown Municipal Court today. Twelve were fined $20 each, their sentences suspended, and they were placed on probation for six months. Four found to be juveniles were continued until Saturday. One case was placed on file. The raid was made on complaint that a crap game was in progress, but no evidence of gambling was found.

Wellesley College reopened today with a smaller registration than usual, due to the more rigid entry requirements. The registration was about 1,550, of whom about 350 girls belong to the entering class.

The falling off in registration is due to the agreement of leading girls' colleges to admit no more students on certificates, and to require examination in every case.

A number of faculty members returned to the fold at Wellesley after having served the colors in various capacities during the war. Among them were Miss Margaret G. Jackson, professor of Italian, who had been with the Wellesley unit in France; Miss Elisa J. Newkirk, head of the department of architecture, back from service as instructor in the A. E. F. University; Miss Louise Snowden, professor of history, who did canteen work in France, and Professor Arthur Norton, head of the department of education, who has served as a housing expert under the direction of the Department of Labor.

Founders' Hall on Art Building Hill was thrown open for the first time today. The building is in memory of Mr. and Mrs. Durant, founders of the college, and was endowed by them.

The girls began arriving back at school late last week, but a number of registrants from distant parts of the country had not gotten in today. Both student and faculty bodies are preparing for one of the busiest seasons in the history of the school, in this first pre-war year.

STUDENT HELD AFTER LITTLE GIRL'S DEATH

Roy Ewerts, nineteen, a student, of Lincoln avenue, Quincy, was held in Somerville court today on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Helen Costello, nine, of No. 219 Tremont street, Somerville.

Ewerts, who also was charged with operating an automobile without a license, was said to have been driving a machine which struck the child on the night of September 16, on Prospect street, Somerville. She died shortly after. The case was continued until September 29 and Ewerts was held in $1,000.

WOMEN PROTEST LEAGUE PLAN IN TREATY

Thousands of Mothers Plead That Their Sons Be Brought Home From Abroad

San Francisco, Sept. 22.—Thousands of San Francisco mothers stood for two hours and a half this afternoon in front of the City Hall to ask the United States government to bring their boys home and to protest against signing of a treaty which will mean the sending of more of their sons to fight on foreign soil.

Their protest was expressed in patience, applause and in a plaque to sign the petition that will be sent to Washington.

There were gold star mothers in the assemblage who knew what it meant to fight for this country. Colonel John P. Roberts raised his voice against a treaty to embroil his country in foreign wars.

It was a meeting predominated by home loving and maternal instincts and emotions of American women. But it was not a women's meeting. Men were there in large numbers, leading in the applause and cheers that greeted every expression of woman's interest in the welfare of her country.

Friends of Irish freedom were there, but there was no effort to emphasize any cause but that of American independence and freedom from entangling alliances.

There were more people than the voices of speakers in the open air could reach, but they stood through the meeting to lend the weight of their presence to the protest against the international politics of the present administration.

It was not an isolated meeting, representing San Francisco alone. Telegrams from leaders of women throughout the country were read, and one of them announced the sending of a protest signed by 25,000 Los Angeles women to administrative headquarters and the Senate.

Mrs. William R. Hamilton, who lives at the Fairmont Hotel, acted as chairman of the meeting. She announced that San Francisco women who are unable to sign the petition at today's meeting may enroll themselves in the huge protest against Article "X" of the proposed covenant that will be sent from this city, by communicating with her at that address.

At the close of the women's meeting at the City Hall, the clause in the league and Article "X" a resolution to the United States Senate expressing disapproval of the article was read by Mrs. W. N. Hamilton and the petition of the convention were invited to sign. In spite of the lack of facilities and the closely packed crowds, 10,000 of the 25,000 more than a thousand names were obtained.

QUARREL OVER CHILD LEADS TO STABBING

One man is reported dying at the City Hospital and his assailant is locked up in Station 5, charged with assault and battery and attempt to kill with a sharp instrument, as a result of a quarrel over the right of a man to strike another man's child.

Ira T. Kellon, thirty-four, of No. 286 Northampton street, South End, is the name of the man on the danger list, suffering from a deep knife wound in the back.

Hrilaka Freidia, thirty-four, a lodger at the Kellon home, is the man under arrest, charged with inflicting the wound. He was held in $10,000 pending the result of Kellon's injuries.

It is alleged that Freidia struck one of the Kellon children today. Kellon resented it. An argument followed in which it is alleged Freidia drew his pocket knife and inflicted the serious wound in Kellon's back.

Neighbors telephoned Station 5 and officers went to the scene arrested Freidia and rushed Kellon to the City Hospital.

LOBSTER THEFT CASES GO TO GRAND JURY

Five lobsters betrayed three men into the hands of the Chelsea police and landed them in court today before Judge Brown, where each was held in $2,000 for the grand jury. The men are John Dean, 24, of St. John, N. B.; James J. Attridge, 20, of Pahsett street, Brighton, and Willam Wayland, 22, of Second street, Everett. They are charged with breaking and entering the premises of the Boston Lobster Co.

DE VALERA TELLS OF IRELAND'S COMMERCE, RUINED BY ENGLAND

SAYS INDEPENDENCE COULD RESTORE PROSPERITY

IRELAND'S TRADE AND COMMERCE AND ITS DESTRUCTION

By EAMON DE VALERA
President of the Irish Republic

If independent, Ireland would undoubtedly be one of the most prosperous countries in the world. Her advantageous position, lying as she does on the Western frontier of Europe on the principal trade route of the world, and possessing safe and commodious harbors, fit her to be the entrepot of the western hemisphere; this, coupled with her wonderful and practically untapped natural resources, her fertile soil, her industrious populace, stimulated to energy by the establishment of a national government "of, for and by the people," would raise her again to the proud position she once occupied in the world's affairs.

Sir Humphrey Davy, the eminent English scientist, said of Ireland:

"Its natural advantages are pre-eminent; it contains an untouched fund of wealth; admirably suited for commercial intercourse with the whole world; intersected by navigable rivers and lakes; supplied abundantly with fuel, possessing limestone in every district; abounding in mineral treasures; coal and iron below, an inexhaustible source of manure upon the surface; it needs only an enterprising spirit, directed by science, calling forth and awakening the industry of the people, to render it in proportion to its extent, the most productive, the richest part of the world."

Ireland's past commercial history is the best augury for her future prosperity if the management of her own affairs lay in her own hands. This history is so little known that it may be well to expand what I have written of it in the preceding articles.

According to the archaeologist, Gilbert, the earliest inhabitants of Ireland brought with them " . . . arts and civilization, such as dyeing and weaving, working in gold, silver, brass . . ."

Commerce in Pagan Ireland

There was considerable commerce and native intercourse between the Phoenicians and Carthaginians and Ireland. French writers state that Marseilles traded with Ireland, and Irish analysts mention the presence of Greek merchants at the famous Irish fairs. The Roman Tacitus stated that the ports of Ireland were better known to merchants than those of Britain because of the greater amount of commerce. Ptolemy, about the year A. D. 130, enumerates several illustrious cities in Ireland, three being seaports, seven inland. Alfred, King of the Northumbrian Saxons, lived in Ireland towards the middle of the seventh century. He stated that he found in Ireland "much food, raiment, prosperity, traffic and cities."

Before the Norse or Ostlin came to Ireland, there was an extensive trade carried on with the Continent; and particularly with France, Belgium, Italy, Spain, Britain and Scotland. William of Newburgh, an English writer often quoted, states that Dublin, soon after the Anglo-Norman invasion, was "a noble maritime city, the metropolis of Ireland, and the rival of London for commerce, and the abundance of its port."

During the twelfth, thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, Irish trade with the Continent flourished and grew to an enormous extent; and this notwithstanding that the country was distracted and torn with continuous warfare with the English invaders, who kept arriving in swarms.

Irish corporations were maintained in many of the large cities of Europe, and Irish names were common on several of the Continental guilds; while merchants from Italy and France dwelt in Ireland. There was extensive trade with France, Spain, Italy and the Low countries. Bordeaux, Rouen, Antwerp, Bruges, Lubeck, Lisbon, Genoa, Naples and Florence are among the ports mentioned that were crowded with Irish shipping; for, strange as it may seem, Ireland carried on a large maritime trade in her own ships, the ports of Cork, Galway, Drogheda, Youghal, Dublin, Waterford, New Ross, Waterford, Kinsale, Limerick and Sligo possessing their own fleets. In 1570, Stanihurst, the English historian, reckoned there were "eighty-eight chief haven towns" in Ireland.

The ships of Dublin, Wexford and Drogheda traded with Chester, Gloucester, Chepstow and Bristol in Britain; and Dublin had a large Continental trade. Spanish, French, Breton and Scotch ships visited the eastern harbors and Irish vessels frequented Lough Foyle and Lough Swilly, carrying merchandise to Scotland from Ulster. Sligo, then one of the principal ports of the West, and Wexford traded with Spain and the Low countries.

The intercourse between Galway and Spain is proverbial. During the fourteenth to the seventeenth centuries Galway reached the pinnacle of its fame as a seaport and trading centre. Ships from Galway sailed to Spain, Portugal, even to the Levant, carrying Irish cloth and blankets, Irish linen, salt cloth, ropes, leather, glass, bronzes and fancy articles, hats, caps, chests and boxes, hemp, flax, nails, gold and silver work, skins, cheese, butter, honey and other produce.

IRELAND'S FAMOUS HARBORS.

The harbors of Munster, Cork, Limerick, Youghal, Waterford, Kinsale, Bantry, Youghal and Baltimore all had their foreign trade with Europe. According to Lord Deputy Sydney (Letters 24) Munster possessed "such goodliness of harbors as is not indeed in all Europe in so short a space of ground there is but so many good to be found."

Great vessels from Venice, as well as from France and Spain, sailed to the spacious harbor of Cork; while Waterford was crowded with shipping from France, Spain, Italy, Portugal and the Netherlands.

From the thirteenth to the sixteenth centuries agriculture was skilfully and extensively pursued; yet war was constant and unsettled all during that period. Enormous quantities of wheat, rye, oats and barley, as well as flax, wool, beef, mutton and livestock were exported. Some idea of the amount of produce of this nature trafficked in may be gathered from the fact that the supplies of the armies of Edward I, II, and III. far their wars in Scotland, Wales, Gascony and Flanders were obtained in Ireland.

Irish woolen goods, linen, marble, tin, lead, alum, timber, foodstuffs, livestock and horses were exported to all parts of Europe. In Britain, Gloucester, Coventry, Oxford, Preston, Winchester, London, Hereford and St. Albans were some of the towns where Irish manufactures were sold and Irish merchants busy. Bristol was the chief centre of a great Irish trade, and Irishmen were represented on the town's corporation. From Ireland came more than 50 per cent. of that port's imports.

Bristol merchants, in order to spread the English woolen trade, conveyed (kidnaped) Irish weavers thence for that purpose. "These strangers and aliens not born under the King's obeisance, but rebellious . . . who were received and put in occupation of the craft of weavers, and these strangers and aliens were so greatly multiplied and increased within the town of Bristol that the King's liege people within the town and in other parts were vagrant and unoccupied, and may not have their labor for their living." (Little Red Book of Bristol.)

There was bitter rivalry and strife between Gloucester and Bristol, and Bristol and Chester over the monopoly of Irish trade. During the Desmond rising in the reign of Elizabeth, she found it necessary to send munitions of war and supplies through Southampton, owing to the known feelings of the Irish in Bristol.

From time immemorial the fisheries of Ireland were renowned. Scandinavians who occupied the coast towns carried on a large trade overseas in fish. In 1437 it is on record that Irish seafish was exported to the Low Countries. The fishermen of Waterford took their hake to France. (Calendar of State Papers, 1509, p. 291.)

The fisheries of the West Coast were at the pinnacle of their fame in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. In the reign of Charles I. the Dutch were granted permission to use Irish fisheries on payment of £30,000, a huge sum in those days. In 1655 Sweden was granted a similar license. So highly was Galway rated as a harbor and fishing port that the Dutch wanted to purchase it from Charles II., and offered what was almost a fabulous amount for it, but the "Merry Monarch," impecunious and grasping, wanted even more than was offered.

During the middle of the sixteenth century at least 400 Spanish vessels sailed to Ireland for fishing alone. (Cal. State Papers, p. 405.)

FISHING GROUNDS CROWDED.

The fishing grounds were crowded with foreign boats paying custom duties to the Irish chiefs for the privilege of fishing there. An Elizabethan officer computed that 20,000 foreigners came off the Munster and Hearst's dominion in South Cork. Philip of Spain offered £1,000 a year (equivalent to £20,000 or $100,000 today) for a monopoly of these fisheries. Three thousand from Yarmouth came to the Irish coast for herring and mackerel; and English merchants cured thousands of barrels of herring annually on the coast from Wexford to Kinsale for exportation to the Continent.

In the early part of the eighteenth century the Irish prosecuted the herring fishery with great vigor, chiefly on the west coast of Donegal. They had a Highland chief, the Master of Rae, and taught white fish curing to the fishermen of the Isle of Barra. They taught herring curing in 1754 along the west coast of Scotland, instructed the Shetlanders in methods of fishing in 1766.

Under the Independent Parliament of 1782 Irish fisheries flourished. The Irish exported fish—chiefly herrings, to the Madeiras and the West Indies, Antigua, Barbadoes, Jamaica, St. Kitts, Montserrat, thereby exciting Irish admiration and jealousy. Fishermen of Newfoundland provided an outlet for their energies. This world-renowned industry was founded by the Irish. "Their great fishery is on the banks of Newfoundland." (Third Report on State of British Fisheries House of Commons, 1785-1809).

In what manner was this great trade and commerce destroyed? Why is it that today scarcely a vestige of it remains? Sydney Brooke, the English publicist, has supplied the answer. Writing in 1907, he said:

"One by one, we deliberately strangled her (Ireland's) incipient industries. Woolens, glass, cotton, sailcloth, sugar refining, shipping, the cattle and provision trade—all went. . . . They were flung back upon the land—and the land impaled them."

Earl Dufferin has left it upon record that:

"Even queen Elizabeth's reign until a few years before the Union, the various commercial fraternities of Great Britain never for a moment relaxed their relentless grip on the trades of Ireland. Every one of her nascent industries were either strangled in their birth or handed over cogged and bound to the restless custody of the rival interests in England, until at last every fountain of spring water was sealed, and even the traditions of commercial enterprise have perished through desuetude."

UNDERSOLD BRITISH PRODUCT.

"The owners of England's pastures had the honor of opening the campaign. As early as the commencement of the eighteenth century the beeves of Roscommon, Tipperary and Queens County undersold the produce of the English grass counties in their own market. By act (of Parliament) Irish cattle were declared 'a nuisance' and their importation prohibited.

"Forbidden to send our beasts alive across the channel, we kill them at home, and began to supply the sister country with cured provisions. A second act of Parliament imposed prohibitory duties on salted meats. The hides of the animals still remained; but the same influence put a stop to the importation of leather.

"Our cattle trade abolished, we tried sheep farming. The sheep breeders of England immediately took alarm and Irish wool was declared contraband (by Parliament). Roaded in this direction we tried to work up the raw material at home; but this created the greatest outcry of all. Every maker of fustian, flannel and broadcloth in the country rose up in arms, and by an act of William III. the woolen industry of Ireland was extinguished and 20,000 manufacturers left the island.

"The easiness of the Irish labor market, and the cheapness of provisions still giving us an advantage, even though we had to import our materials, we next made a dash at the silk business; but the English silk manufacturer, the sugar refiner, the soap and candlemaker (who specially dreaded the abundance of our kelp), and every other trade or interest that thought it worth its while to petition, was received by Parliament with the same partial cordiality, until the most searching scrutiny failed to detect a single vent through which it was possible for the hated industry of Ireland to respire.

"But although excluded from the markets of Great Britain, a hundred harbors gave her access to the universal sea. Alas! a rival commerce on her own element was still less welcome to England, and as early as the reign of Charles II., the Levant, the ports of Europe, and the oceans beyond the Cape of Good Hope, were forbidden to the flag of Ireland. The colonial trade alone was in a manner open, if that can be called an open trade, which for a long time precluded all exports whatever, and excluded from direct importation to Ireland such important articles as sugar, cotton and tobacco.

"What has been the consequence of such a system, pursued with relentless pertinacity for 250 years? This—that, DEBARRED FROM EVERY OTHER TRADE AND INDUSTRY, the entire nation flung itself back upon THE LAND, with as fatal an impulse as when a river whose current is suddenly impeded rolls back and drowns the valley it once fertilized."

IRISH DRAMA TO BOOST VICTORY FUND DRIVE

Gaelic School Players to Present Play Dedicated to Eamon de Valera

Miss Mary E. Ryan's latest play, "The Drive," is awaited by friends of Ireland throughout Greater Boston, as her reputation as a playwright is well known to the followers of the Irish drama, and the committee is working hard to make a success of this Irish-American play, which has been dedicated to Eamon de Valera, President of the Irish Republic.

It will be given for the benefit of the Irish Victory Fund by the dramatic class of the Gaelic School of Boston at Hibernian Hall, No. 184 Dudley street, on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, October 15 and 16.

Between the acts there will be a baritone solo by Thomas O'Malley, president of the Gaelic School; a soprano solo by Miss Mary Kirwin, and a contralto solo by Miss Vera Keena. "The Ship of State" will be recited, as will "De Valera's Ride," written by the Rev. Michael Earls, S. J., who was for years at Boston College High School and later at Holy Cross College.

Miss Catherine Corkery, who presented $1,000 to President De Valera last June at the Copley-Plaza and the Irish republic flag at the meeting in Fenway Park, is secretary of the executive committee. Miss Catherine Mahar, who, in addition to making the flag has, in conjunction with Miss Ryan and others, worked untiringly for the cause of Irish freedom, is a member of the executive committee. She was one of the first to start the movement here and was one of those who founded the Gaelic School.

Timothy Donovan, vice-president of the Gaelic School and father of one of the players, is chairman of the executive committee. Miss Julia D. Walsh and Thomas Kirwin have also consented to serve.

The cast follows: P. J. Halloran, Miss Helen Donovan, Cornelius Sullivan, Michael F. Duggan, Miss Delia Dwyner, John P. O'Connor, Miss Mary Coughlin and Joseph Rooney. Miss Jennie Reidy will be the violinist, and the dancers are Misses Bessie, Julia and Margaret Harrington and Miss Nora Flynn.

BRITISH EFFORT TO GRAB SHIPS IS BLOCKED

Washington, Sept. 22.—Great Britain plotted to get hold of 85 per cent. of the tonnage represented by German ships interned in American waters, it is learned from United States Shipping Board officials. Great Britain claimed the ships because she had lost an equivalent tonnage by the operations of the submarine.

The plans of the British government to take over these ships, which are the property of the United States, were frustrated, it is said, by the efforts of H. N. Robinson, who appeared as special commissioner before the Inter-Allied Maritime Council, at the direction of the Shipping Board.

The statement is made that this body began at the outset to lay hands on everything in sight for British interests, as these largely dominated the Council. The United States, playing the role of an "associated power," was not formally represented in the Inter-Allied Maritime Council.

The Maritime Council took up, almost immediately after its organization, the matter of the allotments and allocations of German ships, including, of course, those in German ports.

The American officials, who were concerned in the German ships in American ports, took it for granted that there was no question but that they would be dealt with by the United States.

On the contrary, according to Shipping Board officials, the Maritime Council took an opposite view, holding that all the German ships were to be subject to the disposition of the council. At the time there were 900,000 tons represented by the German ships held in American ports.

When it was suggested in the council that all ships held everywhere should be regarded as a unit and that they should be apportioned among the Allies in the ratio of their loans by submarines, it was clear to the American representatives that if this plan went through Great Britain would get 85 per cent. of German tonnage in the ports, which had been considered absolutely American property. This plan was beaten largely through the personal efforts of Robinson, the Shipping Board agent, it is stated.

The Shipping Board officials say that there appears to be no doubt that Great Britain is to be indemnified for the "sacrifice" made in giving up her claims.

HARVARD OPENS TO GREET HEAVY ENROLLMENT

Expect Largest Student Body in History; Many New Courses Added

Beginning its 283rd year this morning, Harvard University required students in all departments to register between 10 and 6 o'clock, and by nightfall the college officials will be able to estimate the total enrollment of the university, which is expected to be the largest in its history.

This year will be the first full academic year since the war, and marks the return of the college to a peace basis. Practically all of the 163 members of the faculty who have been absent on military or other government service were back at their posts in Cambridge today.

NEW ARTILLERY COURSE.

It will be the first year in which Harvard has had a Field Artillery R. O. T. C., the military unit previous to America's entrance into the war having been an infantry unit. It is also the first full year of the new engineering school which was organized last Winter with C. A. Adams as dean as a result of the court's decision that the funds of the Gordon McKay bequest could not be used to finance the merger in engineering which Harvard and M. I. T. had planned. It is the first year that compulsory athletics for freshmen have been in effect.

Registration for the freshman class took place in old Harvard Hall, while seniors and juniors filed in their blanks at Sever Hall, and sophomores at Emerson Hall.

OPEN EXTENSION STUDIES.

Tonight Colonel R. C. Goets, head of the department of military science and tactics, which comprises the artillery unit, will speak to the freshmen in the common room of Smith halls and explain the arrangements for military training at Harvard for this year. Membership in the corps is voluntary and each student will be required to take one course in military science and tactics in each of his four years as an undergraduate, which courses will count toward his degree.

Two of the university extension courses begin at Boston tonight, a course in coaching to be given by Professor Holmes at the Abraham Lincoln School on Ferdinand street, and one on French history and civilization by Dean Charles H. Haskins at Boston University.

SOME HARVARD ATHLETES ARE WORKING THEIR WAY

The fact that eleven men of this year's football squad have applied for outside work to help them pay their way through college is pointed out by the Students' Employment Office at Harvard as an irrefutable answer to the old cry over favoritism to the athlete.

The eleven men who sent in their applications for extra work include R. L. Casey, '20, half-back; J. F. Brown, '20, guard; R. N. Johnson, '22, quarter-back; G. M. Morrison, '20, centre; G. C. Noyes, '20, guard; J. D. Pratt, '22, tackle; J. F. Ryan, '20, end; C. H. Smith, '22 tackle; J. F. Sweeney, '21, halfback, and E. D. Weatherhead, '22, end. W. B. MacGregor, who worked through the employment office, reported for Spring practice, but thus far has not been out this Fall. F. K. Bullard, '20, pitcher on the college nine, has also expressed his desire to get an outside job through the office.

WOULD ABOLISH OFFICE OF CLERK OF COMMITTEES

The abolition of the office of clerk of committees is recommended in an open letter sent today by the Boston Finance Commission to the Mayor and City Council. The statement recommends that the present vacancy in the office be not filled, and that the duties connected with it be transferred to the office of city clerk, the assistant city clerk and assistant clerk of committees. Abolition of office would mean a saving of $2,500 a year. The Finance Commission maintains that the duties of the office have become nominal, with the transfer of most of the work to other city departments. As the three officials to whose departments the extra work would be transferred have recently had salary increases, no protest from them is anticipated.

RAIN AND COOLER IS OUTLOOK FOR NIGHT

Boston awoke today to a temperature of 70 degrees and a humidity of 86. This temperature was the highest in New England. By 8 a. m. the temperature had risen one degree and the humidity dropped to 81. Rain and cooler weather by night are predicted, with fair weather tomorrow and lower temperatures for several days. Tomorrow there will be fresh southwest to northwest winds. Eastport, Me., at 54 degrees, was the coldest spot in the New England States. The coldest in the country was Helena, Mont., at 52, and the warmest, Key West, Fla., and Galveston, Tex., at 84.

GOOD REGISTRATION AT EMMANUEL COLLEGE

Emmanuel College a new institution in Boston conferring the degree of Bachelor of Arts, opened its doors today. The first day's registration was heavier than expected. The college is in the same building with Notre Dame Academy in the Fenway. Many of the pupils enrolling today were graduates of Notre Dame. Only day students are accepted. Nuns of the Namur Order of Belgium are in charge.

Song School Reopens

The Song Leaders' School, which was closed two weeks ago because of the local disorders, will reopen at the lecture hall of the Boston Public Library tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock, according to an announcement by Stetson Humphrey, musical director, War Camp Community Service.

Parole Board to Give Hearing on the Release of "Sam" Harris

Samuel C. Harris, who is serving a 2½-year term in State prison as "king" of an organized band of auto thieves, is in such a critical condition that the Parole Board has consented to give a hearing a week from tomorrow, September 30, on a petition for his release so that he may die at home.

He is suffering from an incurable attack of cirrhosis of the liver and five specialists who have examined him agree that he has not long to live. He is reported to have suffered intensely in prison. He was sentenced April 17 last. There were twenty-seven counts against him.

"Sam" Harris is known from coast to coast as a horse trader. His implication in an organized band of automobile thieves who operated extensively in Middlesex County proved a sensation. He was living at the Hotel Somerset at the time. He is wealthy. He claimed a mistake had been made.

The district attorney for Middlesex county claimed Harris and James E. Trask of Watertown, became parties to receiving stolen automobiles, concealing and selling them; that they conferred with the thieves and discussed ways and means for disguising stolen cars by repainting and altering their bodies.

Relatives and friends of Harris say with his life despaired of he is anxious to pass his last hours at home and not have the stigma of dying in prison.

HARVARD'S BIG DRIVE ENDORSED BY COOLIDGE

Endorsing the campaign now under way for raising a $15,250,000 endowment fund for Harvard University Governor Calvin Coolidge said that the result of this drive will be an accurate gauge of the country's attitude toward higher education. Harvard's appeal, which is said to be largely aimed toward increasing the salaries of the teaching staff, he characterized as a true revelation of the general situation which now exists throughout the country. His statement follows:

Harvard's appeal for an endowment fund of $15,250,000 is a significant revelation of the situation which obtains today in practically all of our colleges and universities. The income from tuition fees which was considered adequate five years ago is now strikingly insufficient to cover the great increase in expenses."

THREE ADRIFFT IN BOAT SAVED BY NAVAL CREW

After a search of several hours submarine chaser 403 of the Charlestown Navy Yard picked up P. J. Ford of Dorchester and two companions who were drifting seaward in a disabled motorboat.

The small boat was sighted about three miles off Minot's Light.

SERVICE MEN

REMEMBER—You saved Massachusetts two billion dollars in taxes by winning the war quickly in 1918 instead of in 1920, as predicted. You deserve our gratitude plus $5.00 a day back pay for each day you were in the Service. To win this $5.00 a day back pay, each of you must get your friends to the polls and register and vote for me for Governor. If I am beaten tomorrow you will never get another cent for your services. This is your fight. God help me and back me up.

A tax will be placed upon large incomes to raise this money to pay you. I shall insist upon it. I have fought this fight for $5.00 a day for you to the polls—IT IS YOUR FOR YOU TO SAY WHETHER YOU GET IT OR NOT.

I believe also in State employment for the blind and crippled; an old-age pension; a "ripper" labor bill for a forty-four-hour week for labor, including firemen, policemen, carriers, clerks, etc., and extra pay for overtime; public ownership of the railroads and street railways, and a five-cent carfare; instant removal of Police Commissioner Curtis.

I favor free Ireland now.

I oppose the League of Nations. Mr. Long favors it.

Organize in your own precinct for September 23d. Study this notice. Cut it out and pass it along. Be determined. Don't be misled by cleverly-lying statements of my millionaire opponents and their interested agents. Mr. Long could get nothing in the Republican party. Both Mr. Long and Mr. Foss are Republicans attempting to wear a Democratic coat. Can Democrats depend upon them in this fight? I have been elected as a Democrat to the Legislature and to Congress.

SERVICE MEN AND CITIZENS—AWAKE! Don't let these causes fail. Hustle today. You can't win by sitting still or by dividing your votes.

Mr. Long—You make shoes. Why didn't you lessen your profits on them?

Mr. Foss—Why did you increase your rents in Watertown?

Ask for a Democratic ballot. Don't waste your vote on Long. He has dropped into third place.

(Signed)

FREDERICK S. DEITRICK,

Regular Democratic Candidate for Governor

VON TIRPITZ REVEALS GERMANY'S EARLY PLANS FOR WORLD RULE

TELLS OF KAISER'S PETTY TRICK ON CZAR NICHOLAS

VON TIRPITZ MEMOIRS

By ALFRED VON TIRPITZ,
Grand Admiral of the German Navy.

Germany's war with Russia was one of our cardinal mistakes. Our policy should have been continually, after the outbreak of that unhappy event, to try for a speedy conclusion of peace with the Czar while he was still on his throne, before it was too late. This should have been an essential object of German diplomacy, as well as an objective of the German armies in the field and the German fleets at sea, all of which were working for victory.

I believe now that the possibility of an early and victorious peace with Russia early in the war was undeniable. This conclusion, of course, is rendered more difficult by the fact that Turkey came in on our side, and the non-fulfillment of Hindenburg's plan of campaign in 1915, which began so brilliantly. But in spite of all this, an acceptable peace could have been concluded with Russia in 1916, when the Czar began to feel his throne trembling beneath him, and sent President von Stuermer of his Council of Ministers to make peace with us.

For ten years previously—and this includes the time when England had made a settlement with Russia in 1907—I retained strongly the conviction that chardom held no serious threat of the future of Germany. Nicholas did not want war with us. He said to me in one of the last conversations I had with him: "I give you my assurance that I shall never make war on Germany!" And I am sure this was his sentiment, even in 1914.

KAISER'S DIPLOMATS ERRED.

I will not enter upon a discussion of these blunders of diplomacy, which prevented us being able to stem the tide of influence of the Petrograd war party by a more correct treatment of the Czar and the Serbian question in July, 1914, when our ultimatums were driving the two great empires to the point of the sword. Let the Wilhelmstrasse answer for that.

After the defeat of the Russian fleet under Admiral Rolesvensky in the Russo-Japanese war, off Port Arthur and in the Straits of Tsushima, for which the Russians had to thank the English just as much as the Japanese, the trend of Russian international policy began to turn away from Germany toward the English.

In fact, on his return from Japanese captivity, Admiral Rojdesvsky explained this to Admiral von Hintze, our naval attache at the Czar's court, in words thoroughly characteristic and descriptive of the Russian people. He said to Von Hintze:

"A Russian gives a kick to anybody who helps him and is kind to him, for he regards such a person as his lacker. Put the will kiss the hem of the robe of anyone who thrashes him!"

During the Russo-Japanese war Germany tried to effect an alliance with Russia, at the suggestion of the Kaiser himself. He had hopes of forming a great continental coalition to dominate the world. When he told me about it I was dubious, especially as the Emperor hoped to bring France in as a party to it. However, it would have failed anyway, for Russia was unreceptive from the start.

RUSSIA REFUSES PROPOSAL.

I doubted at that time whether an alliance with France would ever result in the armies of France being mobilized for us, especially when it was made with a German pistol pointed at her head with the offer of an alliance as an alternative.

Later on I was informed by Friedrich von Holstein, head of the political department of the German Foreign Office, and a most eminent disciple and survivor of Bismarck that Russia herself had turned down the Kaiser's project. It was Holstein, however, who got Kiao-Chow for us in China and sowed the seed of the German interests in the Far East.

I suspect that the Russian ministers at that time made good use of the German offer in their dealings with the western powers, and turned it to account for themselves. But Czar Nicholas himself was a well-disposed toward Germany. The German public had a false picture of the Czar, as indeed it had of many personalities and political circumstances.

The Czar was an honest and personally fearless man, with muscles of steel. His instinctive autocratic dignity was coupled with a correct habit of straightway referring all political business to those authorities which were concerned. His inmost longing was to disappear into the quiet of bourgeois life. This was why he loved the Wolfgarten in Hesse, a retreat which was a favorite of his and of the Czarina. When he was there he liked nothing better than to be spared any visitors.

HOW KAISER MET CZAR.

For this reason also he liked to mix with the German fleet, where, released from the restraint of his position, he felt and acted like a man among men and conducted himself in a frank and agreeable manner toward us. Among his own people the Czar, it seemed to me, was more than half a prisoner.

On the occasion of the historic meeting between the Emperor and the Czar when both were cruising in their yachts off Swinemund, in 1907, the German imperial yacht Hohenzollern sailed past the rendezvous set for the reception, and contrary to the arrangement understood between the Czar and the Kaiser. It had been understood that the Kaiser, on the Hohenzollern, was to lie at anchor and that the Czar, on his yacht, was to sail through the lines of our fleet.

But the Emperor, in one of his impetuous moods, and doubtless not unmindful of the theatrical effect lent by the combination of a surprised Czar and the marine panoply in which he made of himself the stellar figure, pressed me to sail the Hohenzollern on to meet the Czar. If he had intended to surprise Nicholas, he accomplished his design in one of the hitherto unwritten serio-comic episodes of European history. We sighted the Czar off Kolberg. A high sea was running, but in spite of this the Kaiser ordered the imperial barge to be made ready and, in the full uniform of an admiral of the Russian navy, started in the barge for the Russian imperial yacht, a feat of foolhardy seamanship which the Russians had not considered possible.

Accordingly, on preparations had been made aboard the Czar's yacht to receive him. It kept close to the wind, and we could not understand why, for the elementary help that a ship can give to a small boat at sea consists in the ship heaving to so as to form a protection. While we were passing around the stern of the ship the Kaiser shouted to the Czar:

"Nicky, won't you make a-lee?"

SAW CZAR PREPARING.

But the Czar's yacht still lay to windward, and in a moment we saw the reason why.

For the Czar still in undress, could be glimpsed through a porthole making frantic preparations for the reception that had been forced upon him, too soon for Russian Imperial dignity and ceremony. As we came alongside we noticed that the deck force was at attention, having been ordered by the deck officer to parade. However, the accommodation ladder, by which the Kaiser should have gone aboard with the usual grand ceremonial pomp, was not let down.

Nothing remained but to go forward where a sea-ladder of ropes, for the use of the Russian common sailors, dangled downinto the rough water. The Kaiser was beside himself with rage. We saw the Czar, by this time enveloped in his uniform, rush forward on deck while those gigantic sailors stood as stiffly at attention as corpses. Past their immovable ranks tripped the Czar of all the Russias toward the sea-ladder; far behind him, and realizing the faux pas which they were unwilling observers and actors, came such high nobility of the Russian aristocracy as Foreign Minister Count Lamsdorff, Count Benkendorff, marshal of the Czar's court, and ex-ambassador to England, and Count Fredericks.

CZAR WAS IN BAD HUMOR.

True to their knowledge of the usages of such a ceremony, these grandees swarmed around the companion ladder, which was their proper station, although the ladder was not let down. The mounting of the forward ladder at that time would have been difficult for anyone, and not without danger for the Kaiser. Not even a rope was thrown down to us from the Czar's yacht. The Czar came to meet the Kaiser alone. Our arrival having been unexpected, neither of the commanders of the Czar's yacht—and curiously enough there were two—would assume the responsibility, in spite of the pleading of our naval attache who was aboard, of giving the command which the situation required, and which, in our naval establishment, the officer of the watch would have given of his own accord.

This scene out the Czar out of humor for the rest of the day. In fact, I noticed that whenever he met the Kaiser in Russian surroundings, he looked oppressed. Perhaps this was because the Kaiser immediately became the centre of the circle and, when dressed in a Russian uniform, moved quiet like a Russian in Russian society. The Czar, in whose nature there was the genuine Russian force of passive resistance with little initiative, soon felt himself outshown. Social and political initiative always proceeded from us. So far as the opportunities allowed, I always supported the Kaiser's efforts, which were not easy in their way, to arrive at a good relation with Russia, and I was always able to enjoy the good will of the Czar, although his nature constantly imposed a considerable measure of reticence.

SENT TO PETROGRAD.

In 1903, the Kaiser sent me to Petrograd to see the Czar on a very delicate mission which I kept to myself. In the first place, because the Anglophile Czarina never left her husband alone with me, and my conduct eventually proved me right.

(Editor's note: Von Tirpitz's characterization of the Czarina, who was the German Princess Alix of Hesse, is not borne out by the best authenticated versions of her course during the early stages of the war, when her Germanophile sentiments were generally understood and accepted, even in the Court of Petrograd.)

I cannot judge whether this beautiful woman was gifted intellectually. In any case, so far as I could see, she had not much love left for her German fatherland. On this occasion I warned the Czar of the Far Eastern dangers, which I estimated very gravely, in view of the merely decorative nature of the Russian fleet in Asiatic waters, which was well known to me. Nicholas, who personally could not bear the Japanese, replied to me that he considered the danger for Russia from Japan was past, for he now was too strong for the Japanese to do any more.

I regretted the Russo-Japanese war on our own account, and even on September 2, 1904, when a victory for the Russian fleets was still universally reckoned on, I elaborated to Chancellor von Buelow the danger that would arise if, in the event of a Russian defeat, we were left as mere outposts in Shantung. We could not imitate the cool way in which the English helped the Japanese in the war, although we did the Russian fleet more service with our help and advice within the bounds of neutrality than the French did.

KAISER REFUSES.

When Admiral Hojestvensky asked that our naval attache at Petrograd, von Hintze, accompany him when he sailed with the Russian Baltic fleet to Asiatic waters, the Kaiser refused to give his permission, on the ground that such action infringed neutrality. On the other hand, it was an English personnel which took over in Japan, after the outbreak of the war, the Japanese cruisers Kasuga and Nishin, which had been built in Italy, and English naval officers played a very active and important part on Admiral Togo's staff at Port Arthur.

In the battle of Port Arthur Admiral Togo wanted to break off the engagement, under the impression that he had little prospect of success but the Englishmen on his staff urged him to keep on and shortly afterwards the Russian admiral's flagship, the Czarevitch, received a decisive blow.

England Will Open College for Aviators

London, Sept. 22—England's first aeronautical cadet college will be opened in February. Fifty-five cadets are admitted by competitive examination. Graduates will become permanent commissioned officers in the Royal Air Force.

Candidates for the examination to be held in November must be between seventeen and a half and nineteen years old. The course will last two years. During the second year the cadets will be paid 5s 6d a day.

Among compulsory studies will be English, English history and geography, mathematics and some foreign language.

The cadet flyers' college will be administered by the Air Ministry, and so far as aviation is concerned will try to do what the Sandhurst Military Academy does for the army.

Cadets' expenses will be borne by the State.

Oranges are lower than the maximum of the food control price. Kegs have dropped to $1.20 a dozen.

California oranges are considerably cheaper, now, costing "only" 22 cents each.

BRITAIN READY TO GIVE JEWS OWN HOME

London, Sept. 22.—The establishment of a Jewish State in Palestine will be an accomplished fact notwithstanding reports to the contrary, according to information obtained by Universal Service from the British Foreign Office.

Rumors that the Jews would simply be privileged to live in the Holy Land, without having a government of their own, caused a reiteration by the government of assurances that "Britain will carry out her original intention to give the Jews a national home State, predicated, of course, upon the action of the League of Nations and the disposition of mandates."

An official at Downing street said to the correspondent:

"The peace conference has decided that the Jews should realize their ambition as regards Palestine, and Britain is ready to take the mandate, but it is up to the League of Nations to decide final action.

"There are many questions, including that of the fate of Syria, which will influence the League's decision regarding Palestine. Syria wants to include the Holy Land in its territory. The Jews want a separate State under British protection. We cannot know what will happen until the League of Nations makes its decision."

FASHION WEEK FINDS RICH DISPLAYS IN STORES

By MADAME DE RIBAS,
Noted Fashion Authority.

Sing a song of fashions in the Fall,

Now were I asked to sing such a song, as, in fact, I have been by the editors of the American, I should put in one or two verses, with emphasis, on the richness of Fall clothes. I should add at least a verse on Fall furs. I should not forget, in that song o' Fall fashions, to have the last line of a good many verses chorus the refrain of rich colors, burnt browns and bronzes, and the hardy shades of rose; about gold, and ruddy greens, and russets.

Then, last of all, almost, in this song o' Fall fashions, I would sing about the new lines of suits and cloaks and evening gowns. When all this was done, and women, out Fall shopping, should say to me, "why so cheerful?" I would reply, "because, my dears, the war is over. For the first time now, in long months, the dressmakers and the designers have sent their imagination off on wings, to bring us back beautiful clothes, instinct with fancy. This Winter, oh Madame and Miss of 1919, we do not have to think of coat and color nearly so much as when we were doing Red Cross work all day long. For the men are home, and we must dress up. In our very best, there—ah, well, the men are home. So, in this first little chapter, I would like to speak of suits and coats.

TWO CHIEF TENDENCIES.

To begin with women's suits, as I have observed them, this Fall, in shops in Boston, have two chief tendencies. In mature women, they incline to tailored lines; rather snug to the figure. In youthful models they are a trifle fuller. There is one style of coat, particularly, suited to the slender figure. It is the coat fairly tigat fitting at the waist.

The coat that ripples off, in plenteous drapery, often edged with fur below the waistline, I have seen this called the corset coat. This is rather a utilitarian name. I like it not particularly. The coat is so very much handsomer, somehow, than the name implies.

But this is only a beginning on the coat question. Fur, when it comes to warmth and style and trimming, is the beginning, middle and end of most suits this Winter. For instance, there was one suit I lingered over as I saw it on a little model at Hovey's.

SUIT ON YOUTHFUL LINES.

This suit was one of the new shade, very much like the shade of Mrs. Wilson's toque—the one she wore at Mechanics Hall last Spring, when all the color experts disagreed on the shade—well, this little suit had a sealing collar of gray squirrel, folded, rather cape fashion, down on to the coat itself. It had, besides this, panels at the side of the same fur. There was a narrow, dainty little belt which crossed in front and tied in rather a tailored bow, behind. The suit was "dressy enough for evening wear, and at an afternoon function it would have attracted admiring or envious eyes of all the women who saw it. The style was, as the description implies, more suited to the youthful wearer.

TAKES PLACE OF FUR.

Next in importance to fur as trimming, for the new suits, is embroidery. This embroidery I have seen, as you will, in Boston shops, both in self shades and in contrasting shades, in worsted, in bead trimming, in braid and in chenille. It runs rather heavy, to match the Winter weight of the cloth it is put on. It is an excellent substitute for fur panels, when the fur trimming means more money than you care to pay; or when, again, the fur trimming, as in panels, would give madame more embonpoint than her figure will carry.

When it comes to materials, the favorites are three or four. Of course broadcloth is always good. But, for Winter, how beautiful and greatly to be desired are vicuna cloth and velour, and, particularly, duvetyn. This last named material, the dernier cris in luxury, is equally suitable for dress or suit. It is light; and it is also warm. It comes in quaint shades and colors; and it is so rich that it needs little trimming. In fact trimming would detract from the beauty of the material.

The story of the cloaks is the story of suits, with reservations. Step into any of the Boston shops whose things will be seen in these columns this week, and you will not wish to come away before you have added unto yourself a soft, light, luxurious cloak of velour de laine, or kitten's ear velvet, or softest duvetyn. And if the materials are alluring, the linings are no less so. For the blue of Summer skies, and the russets of Autumn fields, and the brave colors of all out of doors have been gathered together in poetic combination to make the linings things of beauty and of joy.

Fur again, fluffily, adorns these coats. They are only one chapter of the cloak question, however. Another chapter must consider evening garments.

However, Madame Boston out this Fashion Week to purchase for herself the wherewithal with which she may be clothed, will find that richness and symmetry of line, and quaint shades, and fur, were never so wondrously combined as they have been combined in garments shown this week by the best shops in Boston.

PRESBYTERIANS PLAN $35,000,000 DRIVE

Plans for a five-year campaign to raise $35,000,000 for Presbyterian colleges and universities were laid at the semi-annual meeting of the General Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church at Presbyterian headquarters, No. 156 Fifth avenue, New York City, and arrangements were made to secure several assignments to aid in obtaining the funds. The money will be raised by solicitation.

According to Dr. James E. Clarke, assistant secretary in charge of the Presbyterian Colleges Department, $7,000,000 is to be raised each year, $2,000,000 of the sum to be secured by the Presbyterian New Era Movement budget plan and $5,000,000 to be raised by the colleges and synods.

URGE FREE IMMIGRATION TO THE NEW PALESTINE

A resolution for free and unrestricted immigration in Palestine was unanimously adopted at the annual meeting of the Mizrachi, the religious Zionists. The meeting, attended by many rabbis representing New England congregations and others, was held at the Mizrachi Auditorium, Leverett street.

Rabbi Baruchoff of Malden presided, and announced that the Mizrachi membership campaign opens this week with special ceremonies in all the New England synagogues. Abraham Alpert of the Boston Jewish American, who was the principal speaker, urged the need of neglecting profits for the prophets.

ROMAN SINGERS DELIGHT BIG AUDIENCE

Sistine Chapel Soloists Produce Favorable Impression at Symphony Hall

There are not in Boston today four more pleased and enthusiastic men than the Sistine Chapel soloists, Alessandro Gabrielli, soprano; Luigi Gentili, contralto; Ezio Cecchini, tenor, and Augusto Dos Santos, bass. The quartette are elated over their Boston reception and enthusiastic about Symphony Hall which, they say, has the best acoustic appointments of any hall they have so far sung in.

Symphony Hall has seldom if ever been devoted to a more inspiring Sunday evening concert than that given by the Sistine Chapel soloists in their first New England appearance. The great hall was filled to capacity and there were many standing in the aisles. A high pitch of enthusiasm reigned throughout the audience was of the most evenly mixed kind both from the point of religion and origin. And the concert was an edification.

IN BISHOPS' APPAREL.

In the first part of the program the four singers appeared in purple cassock and rich lace surplice, the costume of a bishop which is customarily worn by the members of the Sistine Chapel choir. Consequently, the solemn numbers rendered in the first half of the program seemed to be in tune with and a part of the picturesque setting. In the second part the singers appeared in evening dress. It did not matter to the audience what their dress was like, but the audience had one thing demonstrated to them and that was that there is probably no finer than the Sistine soloists.

Regular patrons of Symphony Hall after listening to "The Noble Roman Four," recalled the joint concert given by Sophie Breslau, May Garrison, Marcella Sembrich and Werrenrath last season, but none would say that the Sistine soloists lost anything by comparison, and this even considering that the soprano, Signor Gabrielli, and the contralto, Signor Gentili, are men. Signor Gabrielli is a big, powerful man with a little voice—that is to say if "soprano" may be described in the customary term "little." Signor Dos Santos is a little man with a very big voice, sub-cellar deep and one-story high. Dos Santos wore on his coat a decoration from the Italian government which he won while fighting as a private with the Italian army in Trentino.

SOME NOTABLE SELECTIONS.

"Il Ritorno Del Gregge" (The Return of the Sheep), by Muller was one of the most likable items on the program, because it gave the singers ample opportunity to display the excellent cultivation of their voices such as in the imitation of bells on the necks of sheep returning to the fold at eventide.

There were selections by Palestrina, the lamentation of a youth over the coldness of his sweetheart, by Iommelli, Vittoria, Iannaconni, Perosi, Marchetti, Antolisei, Lasso, Capocci and others. "Ce' neum et caro mea," by Capocci, an antiphon for the feast of St. Philip Neri written seventy years ago, was rapturously applauded.

Alberto Capelli rendered several organ solos and was encored. He also accompanied at the piano the singers in some of their renderings, including "The Star Spangled Banner," sung beautifully in Italian, which brought the concert to a close.

SONGS AND STORIES AT CONCORD REFORMATORY

Mazzy Arthur Mahonney, soprano soloist of the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, gave a concert at the State Reformatory, Concord. He was received with thunderous applause when he finished each song.

Fred Rubin also entertained with stories and jokes.

The entertainment was arranged through Chaplain Walker.

TREMONT TRUST CO. OPENS NEW BUILDING

Thousands of Visitors Admire Beautiful Quarters Just Occupied in Court Street

The Tremont Trust Company formally opened its new quarters at No. 35 Court street, opposite City Hall Annex today and many hundreds of persons took advantage of the invitation of President Asa P. French and other officers to inspect the entire building of four floors and basement in which has been neglected to facilitate banking in all its branches with comfort and dispatch.

The public who visited Boston's newest bank building were met by officers, heads of departments and the general staff and conducted through the new banking institution.

A BEAUTIFUL INTERIOR.

Numerous large bouquets of flowers sent to the personnel of the new institution and tall palms at intervals set off the magnificent interior of the bank. Nine clusters of five lights each in welded bronze and excellent marble appointments stood out conspicuously, while the stairway near the entrance, with its brass balustrade, could not escape attention and admiration. All the furniture, counters and the like are of mahogany.

In removing to the new Court street quarters, the Tremont Trust Company merged with the Puritan Trust Company, under the name of the former. The building was renovated from the old Puritan Company which formerly occupied the same site. The present building, as it stands, was completed in two months and as late as Saturday night workmen were contributing the finishing touches.

HAD REMARKABLE GROWTH.

Officials of the company expect that thousands will visit the new building within the next few days.

The institution has enjoyed a remarkable growth during its five years' existence, starting with savings deposits of $1,892 and growing to $2,750,000. The total of its deposits, including checking accounts, exceed $7,000,000 and the directors recently voted an increase in capital stock of $500,000.

Vice-President Simon Swig, who has given the Tremont Trust Company untiring devotion, has announced that the bank expects to pay 5 per cent. interest on savings deposits within a short time.

YOU DON'T NEED A FINE COMB. If you use Kil-ve for your children's heads. For sanitary reasons, your domestics should use it, too. Absolutely harmless, non-oily, non-sticky and doesn't interfere with color or growth of hair. Kil-ve destroys all vermin, and the eggs or nits that cling to the hair. Buy it to-day at drug stores—25c, 60c, and $1.25.

WEARS HERO'S CROSSES AS EARRINGS

The sentry on guard in front of the Little Building reached the end of his beat, turned and started back toward Tremont street. Suddenly he stiffened up, stared, and serenely saluted a petite blonde who wore a smart blue-tailored suit. The salute was returned in the fashion of the French, with the palm outward, by the young woman.

The military man wore service chevrons which showed a year and a half fighting in France, never did the salute that just turned and followed the pretty girl up Boylston street. At the next post the sentry saluted, and so it was until the little figure in blue disappeared in the portals of the Copley Plaza.

There was a reason for these salutes and also for the curious throng of several hundred who followed the apparently unceremonious-of-their-presence young woman.

She wore the highest military honors that it is within the province of the Republic of France to bestow, and also that of the heroic little kingdom of which Cardinal Mercier is one of the great outstanding figures of the World War, and the wearing of these war decorations was quite remote from the conventional.

From the small, well-like left ear hung the Medaille Militaire of France, which is only given to privates and generals in the army. Over the left shoulder was the Fourragere, which showed the wearer had been cited twice in the left army. It was the Silver Stork, the insigne of the famous Stork Escadrille, which won its first fame under the leadership of the great Guynemer and which was commanded at the time of the armistice by the great American French Ace, Lieutenant Edwin (Ted) C. Parsons of Springfield. As a brooch hung the Croix de Guerre with eight palms, and from the right ear was suspended by its gay ribbon the Cross of the Order of Leopold, Belgium's highest war decoration.

The wearer of these marks of valor and hard fighting was Ruby Norton, prima donna of the "Nothing but Love" company, which opens a brief engagement at the Wilbur Theatre this evening. These were loaned her by her admirer, Lieutenant Parsons, now in this country on sick leave. It is reasonable to suppose that the fashion set by the beautiful young woman will not be "done to death," for obvious reasons.

PUBLIC FORUM TO PROBE U. S. UNREST

"I shall give my voice and vote as I shall judge in mine own conscience may best tend to the public welfare."

This will be the motto of the "American Forum," a series of citizens' meetings to be inaugurated on Sunday, October 5, at Faneuil Hall. There will be gatherings of Americans, for Americans, with speakers who will discuss subjects of vital interest to all Americans. The proposed series is the idea of Charles Francis Jones, chairman of the committee in charge of the meetings.

Mr. Jones explains the object of the meeting as follows:

"They will be for the purpose of considering the causes of the present-day unrest and their cure. In these meetings will be of great value to the community, without conflicting with other people. The American Forum will be non-partisan and non-denominational. It proposes to allow absolute freedom of speech on all subjects. It counts the best thought of both the conservative and the liberal. All persons connected with the forum will volunteer their services. It is a labor of love for America."

The meetings will be held on successive Sundays throughout the year beginning October 5, at 7:30 p. m. In accordance with the forum idea, there will be public discussion of current events and live topics of the day, with questions and answers from the floor.

Several good speakers will be heard at each meeting, and the discussion will be open to all present.

The general, fundamental subject of the entire series is the query: How can the people get the best out of America? In the words of those who have perfected the plan, the forum is "to give thought and time and intensive preparations to the task of keeping the world safe for liberty and equality, by making Americanism the worthy model of all mankind."

Besides Mr. Jones as chairman, the committee is composed of Thomas Watson, Daniel A. McKay and Dr. Thomas H. [illegible].

CREOLIN-PEARSON

Disinfectant

Gives you the certainty of safety. CREOLIN-PEARSON has a wide range of antiseptic use in addition to its applications as a disinfectant and deodorant. Your druggist has it.

Rupture Kills 7,000 Annually

Seven thousand persons each year are laid away—the burial certificate being marked "Rupture." Why? Because the unfortunate ones had neglected themselves or had been merely taking care of the sign (swelling) of the affliction and paying no attention to the cause. What are you doing? Are you neglecting yourself by wearing a truss, appliance, or whatever name you choose to call it? At best, the truss is only a makeshift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and can not be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The Modine pressure carries the blood circulation, thus robbing the weakened muscles of that which they need most—nourishment.

But science has found a way, and every man suffering in this land is invited to make a FREE test right in the privacy of their own home. The PLAPAO method is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful self-treatment for rupture the world has ever known.

The PLAPAO PAD when adhering closely to the body cannot possibly slip or shift out of place, therefore, cannot chafe or pinch. Soft as velvet—easy to apply—inexpensive. Can be worn while you work and whilst you sleep. No straps, buckles or springs attached.

Learn how to close the hernial opening as nature intended as the rupture CAN'T come down. Send your name today to PLAPAO CO., 180 N. 9th St., St. Louis, Mo., for FREE trial Plapao and the information necessary.

CREOLIN-PEARSON has a wide range of usefulness in your home, on the farm, in stable and factory. It is both antiseptic and disinfectant. CREOLIN-PEARSON is much more powerful than carbolic acid, having a Coefficient of 9 to 10, which is clearly marked on the label for your protection. CREOLIN-PEARSON is safe to handle as directed; it is neither caustic nor corrosive.

CREOLIN-PEARSON always makes a milky solution with water. This and its slight odor are characteristic.

NR TO-NIGHT— To-morrow Alright

Does each day seem bright to you—good to live in, good to work in?

Do you meet each new problem with confidence that you can overcome it, or is your mind too sluggish to take hold of it? It's all a question of whether your bodily organs are performing their functions with perfect precision. To live and be healthy, your body must perform three functions—digest food, extract nourishment from it, and throw off the waste that is left.

Here are the unmistakable signs that something has gone wrong with one or more of Nature's three vital processes:

BRAIN FAG
SLEEPLESSNESS
BILIOUS ATTACKS
A TIRED FEELING
PAINS IN THE STOMACH

NERVOUSNESS
CONSTIPATION
LOSS OF ENERGY
SALLOW COMPLEXION
DISTRESS AFTER EATING

PIMPLES
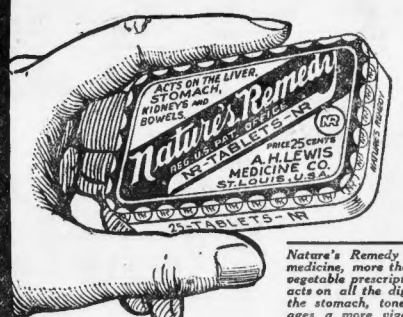
POOR APPETITE
LOSS OF WEIGHT
FERMENTATION OF FOOD



There's A Perfect Remedy For These Disorders

Nature's Remedy [NR Tablets] does more than a digestive medicine, more than a laxative. It is a safe, pure, harmless, vegetable prescription that aids all of the three vital processes, acts on all the digestive and eliminative organs, strengthens the stomach, tones the liver, regulates the bowels, encourages a more vigorous kidney action, builds vitality, promotes strong, sturdy health and guards you against disease.

NR Tablets Are Guaranteed

More than fifty thousand druggists the country over recommend Nature's Remedy [NR Tablets] and sell it with the understanding that it must give relief, must benefit and satisfy every person who buys it, or money back. You take not the slightest risk in trying it. Five million boxes of it are used every year. More than one million NR Tablets are consumed every day.

NR For Your Stomach Trouble

If you neglect the process of the body mechanism, the system becomes clogged with trouble-making impurities. Food continually taken into the rebellious stomach, sours, decays and passes into the inactive bowels where it ferments and obstructs the passage. Under such conditions the purest and most wholesome of food may be converted into dangerous, disease-breeding poison. Nature's Remedy builds up and strengthens the digestive organs, brings back appetite, causes the food to digest, helps convert it into nourishment for all the body and promotes healthy, regular bowel action which promptly throws off the waste.

Take NR For Biliousness

Since bilious attacks, sick headaches, etc., are in the great majority of cases due to digestive trouble, you can't expect to obtain real or lasting relief until the cause is corrected.

When your liver goes on strike and you feel a sick headache and a bilious spell coming on, instead of prodding your liver with dangerous calomel and loathing your bowels with strong, irritating purgatives, eat out your box of mild, gentle-acting NR Tablets and take one-night off—you'll see the difference. Relief will come quickly and with it genuine, lasting, benefit. There will be no griping, gnawing pains. Nature's Remedy [NR Tablets] works promptly and thoroughly, but the action is gentle, mild and soothing.

The real benefit comes through the action of Nature's Remedy on not only the liver, but on the whole digestive and eliminative system—the stomach, the bowels and even on the kidneys.

Why NR Helps Rheumatism

Rheumatism—due to some interference with the process of elimination—failure to get rid of certain body poisons—cannot be expected to yield to any medicine that fails to correct the condition responsible for it.

Think of this. It explains the success of Nature's Remedy [NR Tablets] in so many cases where other medicines have failed. Thousands are using NR Tablets every day and getting relief. Why pay five or ten times as much for uncertain things? Try Nature's Remedy—money back if you wish it.

Beware of Constipation

One of the world's greatest scientists says that more than 90% of all human ills can be traced directly or indirectly to constipation.

Can you afford to take chances with constipation? Why not begin today and take Nature's Remedy [NR Tablets] each night for a week or so, until your stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys are sufficiently strengthened to carry on the process of digestion and elimination unaided? You'll feel a lot better for it and you'll find yourself in better physical condition than you've been in many days. Nature's Remedy acts promptly, thoroughly, yet so gently, that you will think Nature herself is at work. When you get straightened out and feel just right again you need not take medicine every day—an occasional NR Tablet will then keep your system in good condition, and you will always feel your best. *Remember, keeping well is easier and cheaper than getting well. STRIKE QUIETS CAMPAIGNING IN BOSTON

Candidates in Primary Forced to Wage Battles by New Methods

Abnormal conditions in Boston have robbed this year's primary campaign of much of the spectacular which is want to mark elections, especially when contests are so plentiful. With contests at the top of the Democratic ticket, near the top of the Republican ticket and in the midst of both tickets, the chances for entertaining rather were many. The local district attorney fight has been interesting in many ways.

But along came the police strike and with it the abandment of practically all political meetings within the city. And as a result the primaries tomorrow, at least insofar as Boston is concerned, are more or less a speculative problem, Richard H. Long, Eugene N. Foss, George F. Monahan and Frederick Delano each claiming the Democratic nomination.

Indications are that the fight centers between Long and Foss, both are splendid campaigners. Each has a fine organization behind it, with Long favored as a result of his fine campaign a year ago. Each has adopted a popular issue, the former fear fare and lower cost of living. Monahan and Dieterick promise the removal of Commissioner Curtis and Monahan alone pledges himself to secure a law permitting the manufacture of something stronger than the accepted 2.75 beer.

REPUBLICAN BATTLES.

The Republicans battle for the Attorney-General and State Treasurer offices. Robert J. Bottomley, late Good Government Association, Assistant Attorney-General Hitchcock, J. Weston Allen, David Stoneman, J. Mott Hallowell and Clarence W. Rowley have each canvassed the State thoroughly in the fight for the right to go before the voters in November.

For treasurer, Colonel Frank S. Perkins of the Yankee Division opposes Major-General Frederick E. Pierce of the old militia, and Frederick N. Kerr of Winchester. Colonel Pierce has waged a strenuous campaign by many members of the famous Twenty-sixth Division working on his interest. Today he is confident of victory.

Were it not for the strike, Boston unquestionably would have suffered a barrage of oratory from the different candidates for district attorney. With the exception of Joseph C. Pelletier the candidate have waged a hard fight. Mr. Pelletier, secure in the position, adopted the attitude of watchful waiting. He felt confident of securing the nomination in both parties and made no move until Saturday when a statement of his stewardship was issued.

SOME SHARP CAMPAIGNING.

In direct contrast to his quiet method of campaigning was the work of Daniel J. Kiley, who seeks both nominations, and Francis Juggins and Joseph Lundy seeking the Republican nomination alone. Mr. Kiley has hurled various charges at the district attorney. Mr. Pelletier answered them categorically in his Saturday statement. Mr. Lundy has likewise come into the light with statements reflecting on Mr. Pelletier.

Lundy has also assailed Francis Juggins. Mr. Juggins on the other hand has been content to wage his contest strictly on party lines without resorting to charges against the present incumbent or serious allegations against any of his opponents. Juggins asserts that as a straight Republican he is entitled to Republican support He claims the nomination today.

Several Democrats seeks to unseat Lewis R. Sullivan as a member of the Governor's Council. James H. Brennan, Charlestown, Barnard Carbin, James T. Kenney and Captain John J. Lydon are fighting Sullivan for the nomination. Sullivan claims the pole and the race.

Supporters of Mr. Kenney were elated today because of his indorsement by the Boston Central Labor Union by unanimous vote. Mr. Kenney, who was secretary of the Musicians' Union, served in the Legislature from 1911 to 1914. He is also a member of the Roxommon Benevolent Association, Division 56, A. O. H., of which he is president, Knights of Columbus, Roxbury Board of Trade, Roxbury Historical Society, delegate to Central Labor Union twenty-three years, a member of the Friends of Irish Freedom and delegate to Central Council Irish County Associations.

DISTRICT CONTESTS.

In several of the senatorial district there are contests in both parties Senator George E. Curran, in the Sixth, is opposed by William H. Sullivan, John P. Englert and Dennis F. Reardon. In the Third District Senator John J. Kearney is fighting Representative Thomas Donovan. Other Senators having contests on their hands are John J. Mahoney, in the Second; William J. Foley, in the Third; Charles A. Winchester, in the Seventh, and John Jackson Walsh, in the Eighth.

If Walsh gains the nomination in the Eighth, he will probably have to fight Simon Swig once more at the election.

In the First District the Republicans are having a stiff contests with Representative Andrew A. Cameron, fighting Edward Cox and David J. Maloney.

Francis J. McTighe is one of the candidates for the Democratic nomination for Representative in Wards 5, 6 and 7. He has received the indorsement of the soldiers and sailors of the district.

Tonight Mr. Long will have a big meeting at Tremont Temple, and in addition will have a number of indoor rallies throughout the city. In the District Attorney fight, Mr. Juggins was down to speak at the Forbes Hibo plant this noon and at Revere, Winthrop and Chelsea tonight.

PELLETIER UNANIMOUS

Fellow Citizens of Suffolk:—

The District Attorney contest, tomorrow, is of unusual importance. I feel that one or two phases of the situation should be clarified.

Mr. Kiley, after an abusive campaign, has shown his contempt for party regularity by filing papers as an Independent Candidate. While his name will legally appear on the Democratic and Republican ballots, tomorrow, he has thus voluntarily sacrificed all moral consideration of voters in either party. Those who have any respect for their party standards will, of course, ignore his name tomorrow.

My nomination as the Democratic Candidate being thus unanimously assured, I now make the suggestion that the Republicans of the district who have three times honored me with their unanimous endorsement, do so again.

Precedent for this will be found in nearly every Republican district in the State where the Democrats, being in the minority, gladly join with the Republicans and endorse the District Attorney candidate of the dominant party. Only by such liberality can the high office of the people's lawyer be kept clean of partisan politics. The late Oliver Stevens served the County as District Attorney for thirty years—endorsed by both parties.

I would like to continue the administration of my office—in the trying days ahead of us—in the same dignified and non-partisan manner that I have always conducted it.

By carrying out my suggestion for a unanimous vote from both parties tomorrow, you will show that you approve of the time-honored traditions of the office of District Attorney of Suffolk County.

Faithfully and cordially yours,

JOSEPH C. PELLETIER.

849 Beacon Street.

Karl Muck Engaged as Conductor for Berlin Concerts

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND.

Staff Correspondent of the Boston American.

(Special Cable Dispatch.)

Berlin, Sept. 22.—Karl Muck, the deported former leader of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, arrived in Scandinavia a fortnight ago and has since been engaged to conduct two concerts of the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra of Berlin, in October.

Arriving in Copenhagen, Muck said: "I am a complete nervous wreck as a result of the campaign against me in America, and my interpaid experience."

Accompanied by his wife, he went to Sweden for a rest.

TO FORCE ARMY TO PUT AUTOS ON MARKET

Washington, Sept. 22.—The House is expected to take action at an early date to force the War Department to put its 47,000 surplus automobiles on the market immediately.

Representative Reavis, Republican, of Nebraska, chairman of the subcommittee of the House Committee investigating the War Department, which reported out the resolution ordering the sale of the army's surplus food supplies, has given notice that the committee will follow the same course with regard to surplus automobiles.

The ire of the Congressman was aroused by the recent testimony of Brig. Gen. Leonard Wood, chief of the Motor Transport Corps, before the War Investigating Committee. General Drake stated that 420 communications had gone from his office to the sales department of the War Department calling attention to the fact that thousands of trucks and passenger cars belonging to the army were going to ruin, and pleading for the sale of these machines, but that the director of the sales chief of the army sent them back with the comment that he did not care for "any instruction on this matter."

The head of the sales department, a Mr. Hutchinson, Mr. Reavis stated, was the general manager of the Willys-Overland Automobile Company before he became connected with the War Department. Mr. Reavis added:

"Not one of those cars has been sold. There is no question in my mind but that the sales department is pursuing identically the policy with reference to automobiles that it pursued with reference to foods. I do not doubt that it will dispose of the surplus, according to the agreement issued in January, 'so as not to injure industrial condition in America.'"

Preliminary inquiry by Mr. Reavis' committee have shown that the War Department has received from the factories since the signing of the armistice last November automobiles aggregating in value approximately $175,000,000. Said Mr. Reavis:

"Within an hour's ride of Washington there are new Packards, Cadillacs, Dodges, Buicks, Chandlers and Hudsons piled five high in the crates from which they have never been taken in an open field."

In face of this condition and the inability of the automobile factories to make deliveries of certain cars within less time than three or four months, many Congressmen who have consulted the War Department, on behalf of constituents, for information as to when the surplus cars will be placed on sale, state that they have been unable to get any satisfaction whatever.

British Troops Stop Sinn Fein Loan Meetings

Dublin, Sept. 22.—Sinn Fein meetings were planned all over Ireland yesterday to boom the Irish loan, but wherever the long arm of Viscount French's military machine could reach them those meetings were suppressed.

Eight newspapers were closed down by the government over the week-end for publishing advertisements in connection with the loan.

The Cork Examiner has reappeared. This was the first paper to be suppressed.

The Irish police, especially those in country stations, have been supplied with hand grenades calculated to explode in four seconds, and which can be thrown as far as eighty feet.

SERVICE MEN TO AID PRINCETON FUND DRIVE

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 22.—Princeton University's campaign for an endowment fund of $14,000,000 will be officially launched as a general movement to be held at Princeton on September 26 and 27. Alumni from every section of the country will attend this meeting, which will be one of the most representative gatherings of Princeton graduates ever held. Members of classes that graduated back in the early seventies will meet with Princeton men of the later-day classes, including many who had to relinquish their classroom work in 1917 to enter the nation's service.

PLAN 2-WEEKS' SAFETY DRIVE ON U. S. ROADS

A. F. Duffy, manager of the safety section, Division of Operation, United States Railroad Administration, has decided to hold the National Railroad Accident Prevention drive for a period of two weeks, beginning October 15 at 12:01 a. m., and ending October 31, midnight, along the general line of the recent successful sectional roundups of like character.

Intensified safety work on American railroads has attracted the attention of British and Japanese railroad officials, who have written to the United States Railroad Administration for information on the subject.

BRISK BUYING AT BROOKLINE FOOD SALE

There were brisk demands for all kinds of army food when the Brookline Food Centre resumed sale today. Many housewives sought to lay in stocks of assorted jams which are being offered, but the greater demands were for staple commodities. The 90 tons of army foodstuffs which the Brookline Centre placed on sale Saturday, it is believed will be completely sold out by Wednesday.

"HINDENBURG LINE" ROUND FIUME

By International News Service.

Paris, Sept. 22.—Italian troops sent to conduct a blockade of Fiume have constructed a "Hindenburg line" for seven and one-half miles around the city, supported by blockhouses, machine-gun nests and barbed wire entanglements, according to a dispatch to the Journal today, from Andre Tudeske, a correspondent.

The "Hindenburg line" is defended by 20,000 Italian troops, but the blockade is the interesting thing, with Captain Gabriele d'Annunzio's raiders.

General Badoglio, commander of the blockade troops, has established an "armistice line" five miles from the city.

M. Tudeske encountered the military line when he tried to enter Fiume. He reports that no correspondent is permitted to pass into the city without close scrutiny. Another dispatch from the Fiume district said that d'Annunzio was leaving the Italian troops in Fiume to prevent the allies from bombarding.

Secretary Daniels Has No Knowledge of Landing of U. S. Marines

Washington, Sept. 22.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels, back at his desk after his long trip of inspection to the Pacific coast and Hawaii, said today the Navy Department had received no confirmation of the reported landing of a force of marines near Fiume.

Secretary Daniels pointed out that Rear Admiral Philip Andrews, commanding the Mediterranean squadron, could lead a party to protect American interests without consulting the Navy Department, but that if this had been done a report would be received probably before tomorrow.

Autumn Fashion's High Note at White's

The entire front of our windows on Washington Street, a block long, will be a brilliant display of the new fashions for 1919-1920. It will be worth coming a long way to see.

R. H. White Co.

On this page are illustrated some of the style innovations of the period. Each one has some striking note which will be the occasion of comment.

FASHION, at last released from the repression of the circumstances of war, rises for its Premiere like the fire bird of fable—and in a maelstrom of magnificence. The pendulum swings back. The High Court of Fashion, Paris, right about face from the drear and drab of war, has given free reign to impulse and opulence; and the imagery and artistry of the Gallic creator of modes has seized upon the opportunity for unfettered self-expression.

From the wizardry of hand and loom comes apparel marvelous. And America Expectant turns to behold.

Fashion Week in Boston brings to White's the reflex of Paris. This week we have assembled the models, the fabrics, the trimmings, the colors that strike the high note in the harmony of dress. We hope all our friends in Boston and other cities, will visit here early this week to see this beautiful and informing portrayal of the new styles for Fall and Winter.

Fashion Week in Boston

Sept. 22nd to 27th

THIS week the stores of Boston will hold their Fall Openings. For the first time these stores have united in their first formal showings of the new fashions. This means that during the present week a trip through the stores will be a pleasure long to be remembered. On every hand, in every department, in every display window, the beautiful new styles will reign in all their glory.

Each store will show its own interpretations, in its own way, giving full play to individuality.

All join in making this week—Fashion Week—an unusual opportunity to select the fall and winter wardrobe to good advantage. COME.

MUCH PROGRESS SHOWN IN HARVARD FOOTBALL

At the end of the second week of practice the Harvard football squad showed remarkable progress. This is particularly true this year because of the large number of new men and the coaches have had a difficult task in teaching these green men the Harvard system, which is quite different from all other styles of football play.

The squad has now passed through the rudimentary stages, the first weeks being used in hardening the men up. Falling on the ball, tackling the dummies, starting and practice in forward passing and catching punts took up most of the available time. Assistant Coach Fisher gave a lecture on this task, and was assisted in explaining plays by Harry Gardner and Percy Haughton, the head coach.

On Tuesday and Thursday the squad was split up into two elevens from the big squad of candidates. Most of last year's following men were left on the first squad: Ends, Appleton, Davis, Crocker, Ryan, Weatherhead; tackles, Wood, Cabot, Gardner, Lee and Thomas; tackles, Paine, Hurlbut and Kay; Richards, Mackey, Sutter, Townshend, Hardwick, Nelson and Sullivan; guards, Negus and Hall; centers, Woods, Clark, Brown, Higgins, Hayes, Edwards, Lewis, Hall and Wentworth; halfbacks, Dibble, Hallowell, Mercouer, Nelson and Duncan; quarterbacks, Murray, Fenton, Conlon, Fuller and Wagg; fullbacks, Humphreys, Anderson and Wharton. Lacey, Neal, Curtis, Coburn, Hamilton, Hartwig, Bolton, Schroeder, Nelson, Hanneman, Gratwick and Burnham.

PROMOTION BY MERIT.

This is about sixty men left to battle for the first eleven, and when cutting the squad to that number the following statement: that the second squad was to be in the hands of Jimmy Knox and Paul Withington, and that as soon as any man showed his true merit here he would be immediately sent up to the first squad. He said that perhaps there were a few men sent down to the second squad who really belonged with the first squad, but that it was a particularly hard task to pick the men this year and that every man whether on the first or second squad, would be given every opportunity to show his worth. He also said that there would shortly be another cut in the first squad and that all men that wished to stay up there must work hard.

On Wednesday the first scrimmages of the year was held and on Thursday and Friday scrimmages were also held. In these the members of the first squad opposed one another. There was no attempt to make a first team; rather veterans were placed on all four teams to help in running off the plays correctly. Billy Murray was on Team A, Swede Nelson on Team B, Ralph Horween on Team C and Eddie Casey on Team D.

ALL HAD SIGNALS.

The scrimmages that were held were not particularly satisfactory for the reason that all four teams had the same signals and the tendency was to play signals. However, the coaches got a good line on many of the men and from present indications the prominent candidates look up as follows. For the end positions, Ryan, Desmond, Phinney and Wheatsheaf; the big fight for the two positions is going on between the first three.

Ryan and Phinney are the light fast type of end and are especially strong down the field under kicks. Desmond is heavy, as big as any man in the line and is strong in offensive work and as the same time being fast for a man of his size.

For the tackle positions it is going to be a difficult task for the coaches to select the two best men. At present those strong for the two positions are Fyzon, McCagg, Sedgwick and Hadley. Hadley is almost sure of a position if he fully recovers from the effects of being gassed overseas.

HEAVYWEIGHT GUARDS.

For guards there are some real heavyweights, full of fight. Woods, Clark, Brown, Thorndike and Olmsted all look good. So far Tubby Clark has not done any scrimmaging but he will no doubt be right up on top when he is sufficiently recovered. Woods is a man whom everyone picks for a first string position, he has all the qualifications of a good guard. The other three men will no doubt make Clark and Woods show their best to hold on to the first string jobs.

For center three candidates stand out prominently, they are Thibbin, Mercouer and Havemeyer. Of these three Philbin, so far has done the most aggressive, passes well and is very good on the defense. He promises to be the most experienced man on the line.

At quarterback there is no doubt of the first string man now, that is Billie Murray was such a hard act to follow that he will be the first quarterback of the year, barring injuries.

GOOD SUB QUARTERS.

In Ruby Dean, Dick Humphreys and Jackie Conlon Jr. will have the substitute berths to help the chosen quarterback. Dean showed his experience with the Harvard style of quarterback pass with the other two are just learning.

Besides another great fight for positions will be going the backfield, in which Captain Who will open Harvard's season no more? Dolly Fowler, Ed Howe, Ralph A. Horween, Church, Nelson and Burnham. Casey and R. Horween are also sure of their position for the present and the latter for the third position is going to be between A. Horween, Nelson and Burnham.

Burnham will be out of the game for a week with a slight injury and this will give the other two a slight advantage. Nelson is a strong defensive player and I. R. should and him materially. Church will push Casey hard for his position as he has all the qualifications of a good first string man. From the above it can be seen that Harvard will live a very strong team this year, the backfield is exceptional and from first appearances the line is going to be just as good.

MILITARY CARNIVAL PLANS PROGRESSING

Plans for the Boys' Military Carnival to be held in the Mechanic Building of the Massachusetts branch of the American Legion, the week following the Big Parade, the opening night of the carnival will be held on Thursday, October 9, 10 and 11.

Each night there will be a battle scene, duplicating in sham fighting some of the noted character made by American troops in the Argonne. Aerial sham battles will be fought in the guise of searchlights and other spectacular events will be shown.

In addition there will be contests between some of the best known athletes in the country. Karl Dye of Chicago, winner of the 100 and 400 metres runs in the inter-allied games in France, will race Jake Driscoll, the B. A. A. runner, who will enter the contest as the navy's champion middle distance man.

PAT MORAN GOES AFTER HENDRYX AND MILLER

Cincinnati, Sept. 22—To fortify himself with star outfielders for next season, Manager Pat Moran of the pennant-winning Cincinnati club has made two huge offers for the two star outfielders of the American Association this season. These offers were made some time ago, prior to the acquisition of Pat Duncan from Birmingham, and they still stand.

One was for $15,000 for Jim Hendryx of the Louisville Club and the other of $13,000 for Elmer Miller of the St. Paul Club. Both players were formerly members of the New York Yankees, going to the latter from Southern League teams. Hendryx from New Orleans and Miller from Mobile.

B. C. FOOTBALL OUTLOOK SHOWS BIG IMPROVEMENT

The Boston College football squad has completed two weeks of practice under the supervision of Coach Frank Cavanaugh, and prospects of a successful season, gloomy a week ago appear brighter every day. The squad, which numbered a few more than a dozen ten days back, now includes two score of big, husky candidates.

SOME cuckoo, who was elected to Congress during a lull in common sense, chirps that the way to flatten the high expense of living is to repeal last year's surtax.

* * *

TAKE the old fairy story, substitute a hat for the shoe, and that Congressman would be a Cinderella.

* * *

IT takes a cuckoo with a dome like a whitened camphor ball to think up stuff like that

BARNUM never had a tent big enough to hold 'em all. Some of 'em have to go to Congress.

* * *

BEFORE you turn your last season's suit inside out you have to turn the moths inside out to get it. If you spot a bird cackling like the valedictorian of Mattawan University, don't blow a police whistle. He's a bell boy with his suit turned inside out. The buttons are missing and a wishbone.

* * *

* * *

THE James boys also used to twist their coats outside in before mastering a bank. Many a bird gave his collar the reverse. Until he got the neckerchief, no-washee sign on the starch hounds in the Ill Vanilie cuff foundry. But turning your trousers inside out won't stop the patch on the veranda. A patch is a patch, no matter whether it is vulcanized or stitched. Have you piped the bulges the set Little Tads are stuffing into this year's crop of pale frocks? A pout who turns one of those things inside out will look like the auto he rolls with ears.

* * *

WE know a knock-kneed gent in Ashmont whose wife creases all his trousers bowlegged. That's one thing that Woody should have in his Fourteen Points. The League of Nations shouldn't allow wives to crease hubby's pants. Most of 'em get an accordion pleated effect modelled after the wrinkles in Chief Geronimo's face. Others iron in that twist which is all right for corkscrews, but bad for walking. A guy with those curved creases in his strides thinks he is walking up a spiral staircase all the time. Turning a set of those strides inside out doesn't do any good.

IF the elbows of your old suit are frizzled at the knees, if the buttons have turned sour, if there are gun tracks all over the seat and the plaster is dropping off the ceiling, lugging the work inside and is simply wasting a taxidermist's time that might be usefully employed in putting glass eyes in a colluded crocodile. A wise kid knows whether it is a waste of time or on the New Haven.

* * *

A GIMP who ankles up Tremont street with last year's suit turned inside out like a seasick contortionist, is due to get cited for the Croix de Queer.

* * *

AN outfit like that would be a triumph of engineering like the Panama Canal and would also show what a guy can do with the air of persistence and a wrong idea.

* * *

STILL, there's a chance of it being successful if the squirrels stay neutral.

A Rule for Height

THE height of the human figure is six times the length of the human foot. Whether the form is slender or plump, the rule holds good on the average; any deviation from the rule is a departure from the beauty of proportion. It is claimed that the Greeks made all their statues according to this rule.

New Master Criminal, Head of the "Society for the Distribution of Surplus Wealth," Terrorizes Millionaires of the Big City

By Arthur Somers Roche.

(Whose novels have placed him in the front rank as a writer of detective stories)

The Action So Far

John Hastings, [illegible] and captain of industry, has employed Robert Allaire, a young lawyer, to do some work for him. A criminal [illegible] and reveals himself as a member of "The Society for the Distribution of Superfluous Wealth," threatens Hastings with death unless he consents to summon a [illegible] to give him dead and [illegible] later, Allaire proves a perfect alibi. Police Commissioner [illegible] puzzled. Most of the other millionaires are [illegible] receives a note from the society and talks over his arrest and the letter with Allison [illegible] office. Her uncle urges the man not to tell of it. Allison, the excitement [illegible] down, assures him of his [illegible]. Blake is replaced by Heenan, a famous detective. Allaire offers [illegible] in solving the mystery [illegible] abused by the new commissioner. The latter promises to [illegible] murderer under lock and key in forty-eight hours. Allaire and Blake join forces to work on the case unofficially. Heenan, Burke's former tell of Red Casey's death.

INDEED, when other operatives later in the evening brought [illegible] more dossiers, Heenan found them of as small value. The gentlemen who compromised the Maple Club, and who seemed to be Allaire's closest friends, were all men of outstanding whose lives seemed to hold no secrets. So Heenan turned to the study of Allaire himself, but here also was nothing of importance. It was a considered fact that the young lawyer, who had stood well at college and [illegible] school, and was by the way beginning to do very well in practice, should be rather intimate with Peter Courtney—at least, the detective said that he called often upon Courtney's niece—who was one of Heenan's clients that had telephoned for protection today. But it was nothing extraordinary; it was merely coincidence. Heenan shook his head.

"Stumped, Dexter," he [illegible] looked up.

"Stumped, sir?"

"Stumped you. But not licked, Dexter," growled Heenan. "Facts aren't a blasted thing in these days to attach suspicion to any of 'em; but Allaire was impersonated by a guy that knew him well. These are the only people that know him well, Sumpter, where is he now?" He shook the pap ns on which the [illegible] stars were written—as the [illegible] device of murderers. "Just keep trailing this every move. The man who loses sight of one of these guys loses his job. While they're trailed they can't commit murder. Put it strong to the boys."

A Newcomer

"Then you still think it's a newcomer? No old-timer pittin' these things over?"

"I don't think it—I know it," snapped Heenan. He fell into a brown study [illegible] to himself and frowning. Dexter [illegible] a little while, then spoke up tentatively.

"Better get some sleep, Chief," he counselled.

The great detective grunted an unintelligible answer. It was hours later before he went to sleep, and then he was completely [illegible] in his [illegible] [illegible] sleeping tightly with the supreme doggedness of [illegible] of his the hunch of good [illegible].

The sharp clang of the telephone broke in upon the moment of understanding between uncle and niece. Allison lifted her tear-wet face from her uncle's breast.

"Don't answer it," she said; "don't answer it." Then the innate courage that was hers banished the dread that it had held. She smiled wanly. "I'm [illegible]," she said. "but I'm better now. Answer it, uncle."

Once again [illegible] her half-[illegible] then he picked up the telephone from the library desk. He spoke [illegible] Her Uncle Explains

Europeans Like Soft Drinks

Millions of American soldiers in Europe created a demand for soft drinks which introduced the latter with popularization results. A consular report says: "There appears to be no doubt but that shops equipped with modern soda fountain and soft selling ices, ice cream and sweets would be a financial success in practically all European cities."

Another Loan to Italy

Further credit to Italy to the amount of $1,146,927 has been extended by the United States government, making loans by America to that country total $1,819,922,873. United States to all allies now total $9,646,319,495.

STEELS LED IN THE UPWARD MOVEMENT

Trading Sentiment Reaction Bullish, Despite a Wide-spread Strike

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at noon, although a shade below the forenoon highest. The advance which began in the first hour was resumed in the second. Steels were leaders in the upward movement. The market was fairly active, transactions totaling around 220,000 shares during the first hour. Trading was professional in character and operators were cautious about commitments pending strike developments.

At the opening of the money market, call funds were quoted at 5½ per cent. Opening foreign exchange rates were demand sterling, 4.14; cable, 4.14⅞; demand francs, 8.97; cables, 8.95; fire demand, 9.07; cables, 8.95; marks, 2.97.

American Tobacco was a feature, having advanced ten points to 284⅛. Oils were strong. Texas Co. being up five, Mexican Petroleum and Pan American 3¾.

At 12 o'clock U. S. Steel was up ⅝ at 101⅜, after ranging from 100⅝ to 102. Advances by other steels included Crucible, Republic, Bethlehem B, ¾ at 96⅝; and Midvale, ½ at 48⅞. Republic Steel was off ⅝ at 85½. Equipments were strong, Baldwin being up 2¼ at 123¾. American Locomotive 2¾ at 106½; Railway Steel Springs 1¾ at 97 and Car and Foundry ½ at 132.

HIGHER AT THE OPENING.

While a number of stocks declined at the opening the majority showed gains, with steels and equipments in the lead. Fluctuations were narrow, however, whether the movement was up or down. Crucible Steel was an exception, advancing three points on the first sale. U. S. Steels opened 500 shares at 101⅛ and 3,000 shares at 101¾. American Tobacco opened at a new highest record price. Among strongest issues during the first hour were Retail Stores, American Locomotive, Baldwin, Texas Co. and Mexican Petroleum. The latter advanced from one to more that five points, American Tobacco making the largest gain. Kenyon Tire was notably weak, declining almost five points in the first hour. Early trading was of fair volume.

SENTIMENT RATHER BULLISH.

Sentiment on Wall Street was rather bullish, as indicated in price improvement by 11 o'clock. The earliest wire reports up to that time stated that no material change had set in on strike than had been expected to go out. Not much selling was done at the opening, buying orders predominating. In fact, the supply of stocks was not sufficient, and when there was covered for awhile, there was enough covering of shorts to contribute to the advance. The strength of the day was said to be due to steady accumulation by important interests. Corporations in this industry are in a very strong financial position. Earnings for several years past have been on a scale that would enable them to remain closed for a considerable period without affecting the interests of stockholders to any extent.

New Cars in Service

In regard to new freight cars for steam roads, Director General Hines of the Railroad Administration states that during the week ended September 13, 5,311 cars were placed in service at the rate of 190 per working day. The total number of the cars in service September 13 had increased to 59,409.

Wall Street Briefs

It is stated that negotiations are about complete for the absorption of the American Tobacco Co. by the United Retail Stores Corporation.

Plant capacity of the Hares Automobile Co. is to be increased 15,000 cars annually and capital stock will be raised from $5,000,000 to $7,000,000.

For the first half of this year the net earnings of the Alan Fisher Co. decreased $72,878 and its surplus decreased $135,467.

Lehigh Inc., incorporated under Delaware laws with $50,000,000 capital, control a chain of candy stores in New York city and has a charter enabling it to deal in food products of all kinds.

August earnings of $85,000 by the American Rolling Mill Co. were the best for a month in the corporation's history. After taxes and interest earnings were of the normal rate of $10 a share on common stock.

The Provident Motor Corporation, which has passed under the control of L. S. Sloeum, an Oklahoma capitalist, who is the president and manager, has a plant valued at $3,000,000. It will be enlarged and produce 10,000 cars annually.

For the first six months of 1919 $4,400,000 of Cosden and Co. securities will be issued after interest charges, but before depreciation and taxes. Earnings for the corresponding period last year were $3,500,000. The future policy of the corporation will be to declare stock dividends on the enlarged issue.

For the fiscal year ended with June last, Brooklyn Rapid Transit reports surplus of $420,364 after taxes and Federal charges, compared with $4,132,664 in 1918.

World's Cotton Supply

According to compilations by the Chronicle, the world's visible supply of cotton is 4,636,681 bales against 3,145,502 last year. The American supply is 2,715,681 against 2,039,502 bales last year.

PRICE CHANGES NARROW AND IRREGULAR

Boston Market Has No Enlivening Feature During the Morning

Irregularity as to price changes marked the list in Boston when the market opened, and this remained true of the morning. The movement was narrow as well as indecisive. Trading was dull and had no enlivening phase. As a rule, copper were lower, and they continued inactive. Auto accessory shares were strong as a class but activity in this group was confined largely to Gray & Davis. There was considerable business in Ventura Oil.

Among issues to advance during the morning were Hoot & Van Deventer, Gray & Davis, Ventura, Parish Bingham, Nipissing, Massachusetts Gas and Davis-Daly.

Among those to decline were American Telephone, American Woolen preferred, Calumet & Arizona Copper Range, Lake Royale, Mohawk, Stewart, Swift International, Mexican Investments, Bigheart and St. Mary's Land.

Gray & Davis rights were active and declined during the forenoon.

Gold Exports

For the month ended by August 15 this year, the net shipment of gold totaled $49,959,000, as compared with $91,472,000 for the month ended July 15. Figures for the month ended September 10 are not yet at hand.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, Sept. 22.—Corn opened 3c to 3½c higher. Oats were 5c to 5½c higher. Provisions opened with prices were: Corn—December, 1.22⅝; May, 1.22⅝. Oats—December, 68⅜; May, 72¾. Lard—October, 23.50; 23.85. Ribs—October, 15.40.

New York Sub-Treasury Loss

New York, Sept. 22.—The sub-treasury lost $10,910,000 from the banks on Saturday, making the cash net loss since Friday $15,810,000.

Increased Earnings

Since the John T. Connor Co. was incorporated in this State its earnings have steadily increased. For the 1917 fiscal year its gross amounted to $7,446,000; in 1918 the figure was $8,687,949 and in 1919, $7,133,718.

Cotton Market Opening

New York, Sept. 22.—The cotton market opened steady, with prices 9 to 18 points higher on buying by local houses and Liverpool interests. If the steel strike had any effect at all, it was to stimulate the belief that the demand for cotton goods would be unusually heavy when peace was restored, and that the market was ready, at a net decline of about five points. Opening prices were: October, 30.00, up 18; December, 29.25, up 14; January, 30.25, up 15; March, 30.31, up 9; May, 30.37, up 17.

RICHARD H. LONG

Regular Democratic Candidate for

GOVERNOR

Long's vote last year was 197,828, the Republican majority reduced from 91,000 to 17,000.

Long built up the Democratic organization and was largely responsible for the election of Senator David I. Walsh.

Long's candidacy for renomination appeals to fair minded Democrats.

Long is feared by corrupt corporations. They have no strings to bind him, no outstanding obligations for him to pay, no trusts to control and dictate to him. He will have but one master—the people.

RICHARD H. LONG URGES:

Graduated Income Tax on swollen incomes, providing $50,000,000 to $75,000,000 to relieve the small tax payer and finance real reconstruction.

State Ownership and development of water power, saving Massachusetts 2,000,000 tons of coal per year, reducing price of coal and preventing coal shortage.

State Ownership and operation of Street Railways and a 5-cent carfare. Good Roads and help for the farmers, cultivation of more land, and reduction of the cost of food.

Real recognition of the service men by a bonus of $360 from graduated income tax.

Self Determination for Ireland with the powerful help of Massachusetts.

The interests are against Long. They want the Democrats to nominate Ex-Governor Foss

He is an enrolled Republican.

He is like Governor Coolidge, satisfactory to the corrupt corporations.

While still Governor, elected by Democrats, he repudiated the party, declared he was a Republican, sneered at the party leaders, sought the Republican nomination and tried to defeat David I. Walsh by running as an independent. Subsequently he abandoned the leadership of the Prohibition party. Insincere, trifling, political acrobat, he will not receive the support of sincere Democrats and friends of Senator Walsh, whose political career he tried to ruin.

State Street is behind Foss to divide the Democratic party.

WARNING!

Eleventh hour propaganda is to be disseminated today and tomorrow by Foss agents in a desperate effort to defeat Long by raising fake racial and religious issues. It is humiliating to Democrats to be held so cheap and ignorant as to be misled by political tricks so contemptible. Beware of circulars bearing fictitious names. Repudiate improper methods. CAST A SINCERE VOTE IN THE PRIMARY TOMORROW FOR RICHARD H. LONG FOR GOVERNOR.

Pelletier's Good Record Speaks for Him

The American has received the following interesting letter:

Editor Boston American:

Boston, Mass., Sept. 18, 1919.

Dear Sir:

The American's editorial column is always sane, concise and RIGHT when it takes a position. Five of us, all Republicans, sitting together, agree as to the wisdom of your views in the unfortunate police difficulty, which we had been discussing. Again you do a great public service.

We call your attention to a condition which we suggest calls for a word of guidance. Why don't you strike a note of non-partisanship in the District Attorneyship situation? The citizens, who have no guidance but the paid advertisements of candidates, are in a maze. We all believe that Joseph C. Pelletier, three times nominated by both Republican and Democratic parties for the place, should again be elected, owing nothing to factional or party groups.

Why don't you point out that in the troublous days ahead a stable, consistent, experienced man in that office, like Pelletier, should, by the unanimity of his election, be free from suggestion that his course is swerved by party obligation or affiliation?

If it is your view, as it is ours, that his conduct of the office has been free from partisanship, you owe it to your readers to say so.

Hoping you don't think this letter impertinent, we are,

Yours respectfully,

FRED S. MAYER, No. 347 Centre street, Dorchester.
EDWARD J. BROWN, No. 16 Neponset avenue, Dorchester.
WILLIAM F. KEEN, Jr., No. 23 Arcadia park, Dorchester.
THOMAS A. BISHOP, No. 228 Park street, Dorchester.
GORDON F. JACKSON, D., M. D., No. 240 Park st., Dorchester.

The American assumes that those who signed this letter are Republicans. We also assume that the Republican opponents of Mr. Pelletier are not particularly serious candidates, not taken seriously, either by the public or themselves. They certainly have not made a serious attack upon Mr. Pelletier's record in office.

If the District Attorney had not chosen to render an account of his stewardship in yesterday's newspapers, it is doubtful if one man in a hundred would have known that anybody criticised him for anything.

After reading this account of his stewardship, the American wishes to criticise him in one respect. His defence of the Bowler case he rests upon the shoulders of former Attorney-General Parker. He assumes that the public will conclude that anything that Mr. Parker might have recommended in the course of his professional practice needs no defence. This is a sniveling performance by the District Attorney, which is quite unworthy of him and entirely inconsistent with his vigorous and fearless character and record.

The people of Boston are not hero-worshippers, and if they were, they would not choose Herbert Parker to be their hero by a long shot.

We had never heard that Mr. Parker declined to represent clients whose guilt he might have some question about. The ethics of the profession permit a lawyer to represent a client through the processes of the administration of justice without putting him on trial before his attorney, and we do not think that Mr. Parker would be less likely to urge an improper nol prossing of a case of a client whom he was representing than any other attorney; and we do not think that Mr. Pelletier's defence of the Bowler case is a good one upon that ground. Indeed, its implication is a little disturbing. If it is true that he assumes that men like Mr. Parker are not to be questioned when they recommend the nol prossing of a case, then we have an administration of justice in the District Attorney's office that is avowedly undemocratic.

But no one has accused Mr. Pelletier of undemocratic practice in his office. Mr. Pelletier does himself an injustice in placing his defence of the Bowler case on the action of Mr. Parker. The best defence Mr. Pelletier can possibly have is that his opponents have only found five cases on which to attack him out of 80,000 cases he has settled during his ten years in office. If that is true, and it is not denied, it is a good record.

We certainly do not think that the uncorroborated affidavit of a convicted man is good evidence against a man who has been District Attorney in this Commonwealth for ten years, and this is all that has been adduced in the most serious charge against Mr. Pelletier.

The American agrees with the signers of this letter that in view of the conditions it is wise to have the district attorney under equal obligation to all parties and all classes in the community. This can be accomplished if the Republicans refuse to throw their votes away upon hopeless Republican candidates and cast them for Mr. Pelletier.

Don't Be Afraid

Much—too much—of prophecy is being issued and printed regarding the alleged certainty of a "flu" epidemic.

From a variety of sources, more or less official, and to which the public gives frequently unwarranted attention, come announcements that last year's scourge is to be repeated.

There was the same official advance scare for the Summer which followed the infantile paralysis epidemic.

Don't be afraid.

If there is to be another visitation of the influenza, worrying about it will weaken instead of strengthen you.

Fear never helped to solve any kind of a problem.

The man who goes into battle shaking with anxiety may be an excellent soldier, but his fears decrease his efficiency.

The man who in health lets the fear of sickness prey upon his mind, diminishes his resistance and lessens his ability to fight what he thinks threatens him.

Job, who had a good deal of difficulty, as you will remember, recognized that fear was very productive of trouble when he wrote "The thing which I greatly feared is come upon me, and that which I was afraid of is come unto me."

Obey the wise and sensible rules of health.

Eat wisely—good food in reasonable quantity at regular hours.

Drink wisely—plenty of water at regular periods. You can get in the habit of drinking water and nobody will object.

Exercise generously—but if you are over forty not violently.

AND DON'T BE AFRAID.

More Truth Than Poetry

ANOTHER TREATY OF PEACE

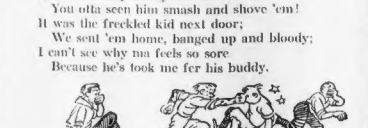
By S. E. KISER

THE people that moved in next door
Ain't in our class, and we despise 'em;
They gotta show more style before
Our folks'll ever reckanize 'em.
Ma says their furnichoor is punk;
She seen the movers when they brought it;
The car they drive is mostly junk,
And Lord knows how they ever got it.

THEY got a boy about my size.
His freckled map would make you dizzy;
Some day I'm gonna close his eyes
And make him think his name is Lizzie.
Ma says she don't intend to call,
She never wants to even know 'em,
For they ain't in our class at all,
And it is up to us to show 'em.

THEY got a daughter that you'd think
They'd keep locked up, the way she dresses;
Her checks and lips are painted pink,
She's wild, accordin' to ma's guesses.
We gotta make them keep their place
And show them that we feel disgusted;
When I push in that young kid's face
I'll make him think the world has busted.

P. S.—Some kids that come from Shantytown
Pitched on to me last night—six uv 'em,
And when they nearly had me down
You otta seen him smash and shove 'em!
It was the freckled kid next door;
We sent 'em home, banged up and bloody;
I can't see why ma feels so sore
Because he's took me fer his buddy.



SOME WISE MEN DRAW SMALL PAY

Knowledge may be power, but you can't always keep a baby from howling, even if you happen to know what is the matter with it.

HOPELESS INSOLVENCY

The sun has tumbled from the sky;
The world in darkness rolls! My wife
Has bought a fur-trimmed coat, and I
Am now in debt, to stay for life!

By K. C. B.

DEAR K. C. B.—Will you kindly tell me why a perfectly healthy and fairly good-looking girl, who has lots of good friends and a job that is even dignified enough to be called a position, should get unearthly discouraged and blue and want to drop out of existence?

She used to be known as "Smiles," and now she has a hard time even looking pleasant.

Even a new hat won't cheer me any more. I'm just nineteen and I'm simply scared to death that I'll be an old "crab" when I am thirty.

I wonder if you can't tell me how to get back the smiles. I am not in love nor am I awfully romantic or anything like that.

I'm in this bad—all I enjoy doing now is knitting—and that on a black sweater.

Give me the glad word, please, and I'll be mighty grateful.

Yours from the depths of the blues,

J.— J.—

MY DEAR Jean.
HAVING THE blues.
IS NOTHING more.
THAN A chronic attack.
OF SELFISHNESS.
AND THERE'S just one way
YOU CAN surely cure them.
AND THE remedy is.
TO GO somewhere.
AND FIND some one.
WITH MORE troubles than you.
AND MAKE them forget.
I KNOW a girl.
WHO ONCE on a time.
USED TO have the blues.
AND SHE'D mope around.
LIKE A moulting hen.
FOR TWO or three days.
AND THEN recover.
AND BE a swell girl.
FOR THREE or four weeks.
AND GET blue again.
AND WE talked it over.
THIS GIRL and I.
AND WE found a kid.
WITH A pinched-up leg.
AND A sad little face.
WHO SOLD newspapers.
ON A city corner.
AND HE wasn't tough.
AND DEEP in his eyes.
IF YOU looked at them.
THERE SEEMED to be something.
THAT COLD of a warmth.
IN THE crippled boy's heart.
THAT HE wanted to share.
WITH SOME one else.
WHO COULD understand.
AND HE didn't know.
THAT THE warmth was there.
TILL THIS girl came.
AND SHE didn't know.
TILL THIS boy came.
OF THE wonderful joy.
THAT COULD be had.
IN JUST doing something.
FOR SOME one else.
AND AFTER that.
ONCE EVERY week.
SHE'D FIND the boy.
AND THEY'D eat together.
AND LAUGH at the world.
AND GO to a show.
AND THE blues disappeared
AND SHE'S married now.
TO A very fine man.
AND THE crippled boy.
IS STILL at his job.
BUT ONCE a week.
HE'S A dinner guest.
TO A home-cooked meal.

I THANK you.

DIFFIDENCE MUST NOT HOLD UP SUCCESS

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

IT is a condition and not a theory which confronts most of us.

There is something in our lives that hampers us, keeps us back and is a continual source of worry and irritation. There it stands like some great rock across our pathway. We realize how helpless we are before it. No matter if we exert all our strength we cannot make it budge.

What are we going to do? Sit down in the roadway before that horrid rock and cry and let the rain beat down on us and the sun bake us while we brood on the injustice and cruelty of the fate which has placed such a stone in our path?

That is the natural and easy thing to do, but it doesn't get us anywhere and it doesn't get the stone anywhere. So it is impracticable.

Must Face Situation

What is the practical thing to do in any situation? Face it; and face it calmly and with your eyes wide open. If you shudder and try to avoid looking at it you will only exaggerate it.

It is a fact, and a very hard fact; but there is something strange and mysterious about even the hardest facts. They have a way of changing and taking on different outlines when we least expect them to do so and could not have believed it possible.

The darkest hour is always before dawn, and when things get so bad that it looks as if they couldn't possibly get any worse, they begin to veer toward good again. We have all heard people say:

"We went through an awful struggle for several years. Everything under the sun seemed to happen to us. And then we came out all right."

If things did not take an upward turn, if a streak of bad luck did not seem to exhaust itself in time, the world would be strewn with a good many more wrecks than it is.

Just as there are certain remedies to be used in cases of typhoid or smallpox, so there are certain remedies which will alleviate and ultimately cure unsatisfactory conditions. One of these remedies is to hold on—hold on to your belief in yourself and in brighter, better circumstances. The most noted example of the efficacy of these remedies is the character known as "the importunate widow" whose experience is told in a very brief and great short story.

To Pray Is Often to Act

"And he spake a parable unto them to this end; That one ought always to pray and not to faint.

"Saying: There was in the city a judge which feared not God, neither regarded man.

"And there was a widow in that city, and she came unto him, saying: Avenge me of mine adversary.

"And he would not for a while, but afterward he said within himself: Though I fear not God, nor regard man, yet because this widow troubleth me I will avenge her, lest by her continual coming she weary me."

There is the whole secret of successful human endeavor. To pray is very often to act.

There are people who have what seems to be an insuperable diffidence which stands in the way of their advancement. They say: "I just simply can't push myself. If things don't come to me because of my merits, why I prefer not to have them."

But how is anyone going to know about your merits, unless you put them in the show window?

TURNING THE WORLD INTO BIG DYNAMO

Science is considering the possibility of transforming our old world into a dynamo, and substituting for our fast failing fuel supply the inexhaustible electric energy which is created by the spinning of the earth through space. This is an interesting conception, and its details are described in an interesting article in the next

Those Extra English Votes
What Will $100,000 Buy?
Useful Poverty
Buckles and Ruffles

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1919.)

The President and others, speaking for the league "just as it stands," say "it is nonsense to talk of England outvoting us" in the league, although England thoughtfully gathered in extra votes for Canada, Australia, etc. If it is nonsense to talk of England outvoting us, why the extra votes for England? And if it makes no difference at all, why not give the U. S. A. a few extra votes, say one for Alaska, one for the Philippines and half a vote for each of the States? The State of Illinois or New York, or any one of half a dozen, is as important as Australia.

The rush to put through the treaty, league and all, in a hurry, reminds you of the old fashioned method of selling a doubtful horse to a "greenhorn"—"hurry up, now, I promised him to another man for more money and he may come any minute."

There is a demand for $100,000 to be contributed by one hundred patriots to secure prompt ratification of the treaty of peace. How can $100,000 be spent to rush through a peace league? We are no longer, presumably, in the "My Dear Senator" days, when kind words and "find draft enclosed" would put things through. Anyhow, there will be no trouble getting the money. Each of a hundred financial institutions and individual speculators would gladly pay a million for the peace league in a hurry. They may be mistaken, but they believe the peace league as it stands would make of the United States a collecting agency to force payment of bad foreign debts. The gentlemen that bought Russian bonds, repudiated by Lenine, would like to feel that in future peace league days they can safely buy bonds anywhere, Mesopotamia, Liberia or Timbuctoo, at any ancient rate of discount, knowing that this country will go over and collect for them, if necessary, conscripting American citizens for the collecting army.

Senator Johnson quotes Lloyd George to this effect: "The United States must enter upon foreign war 'automatically' if England calls." Mothers and fathers whose sons would be conscripted do not like the word "automatically." They would like to have something to say about it. And they will have something to say, emphatically, to the first gentleman or administration that tries to conscript men for foreign war, automatically or otherwise, when England calls.

Money, too easily obtained, makes men indifferent to things that are important. A French Socialist leader the other day told the truth when he said that the world now wants only one thing, MONEY, and cares about nothing else. He was rebuking his fellow workmen who were demanding a five-day week and a four-hour day, reminding them that a workman gets only what some other workman produces, minus the manager's profit. And if workmen decide to do half a day's work, each man will get for his pay the product of half a day's work, not more.

In the United States, when wages began to swell with war orders and labor shortage, night schools were closed, one after another, in many important cities where big pay was easily obtained. Young and older men lost interest in better education when money became plentiful, revealing the fact that they had been going to night school because they wanted not knowledge, but information that could be turned into higher wages. When higher wages came automatically schools closed.

The majority of human beings still need compulsion. Give a good income to everybody, and nine out of ten would cease work, mental and physical. Wise providence keeps us working by keeping us poor.

Foolishness caused by money crops out in different ways. In Paris women go about with bare legs and feet, dresses to their knees and no stockings. It is called immoral. On the contrary, it is moral and inhibitive. Youth, looking at such exhibitions, says to itself, "Is that what I have been dreaming about?" and pays attention to more serious matters. If women, wise and thoughtful, have worn dresses through the ages, it is because experience teaches that mystery is eighty per cent. of romance. In a studio where models appear without clothing, you learn that clothes, and especially dresses, are the great promoters of matrimony and tender hallucination.

In England men's clothing is soon to include once more ruffles and buckles of the old style. Many other kinds of foolishness will grow out of war. For after five years of artificial seriousness caused by battle, you are sure to have many years of artificial foolishness, caused by the reaction. Prize fighters shed tears and put their arms around each other's necks when a long fight ends. Ruffles and buckles for men represent the same sort of revulsion.
